Washington—(AP)—Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) told the senate today that the "fundamental question of whether we shall be eased into war" was involved in the sale of American-made military planes to France.

The Californian, denouncing the secrecy of the airplane deal investigation by the senate military committee, asserted that nothing would have been known about the announcement had not a representative of the French air ministry been injured in a plane under test.

"Good God," he shouted, "don't you think the American people have the right to know if they are going down the road to war?"

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, protested there was nothing in the sale calculated to involve this nation in war.

Washington—(AP)—A member of the senate military committee said today President Roosevelt had indicated that the United States was prepared to sell war materials not only to England and France but to other independent states in Europe which oppose the threat of aggression by the dictators.

Accounts—some in conflict with others—of what the president said to members of the committee yesterday continued to dribble out to the press and public, causing jubilation abroad in the democratic states and condemnation in Germany and Italy.

The military committee, who asked anonymity, said Mr. Roosevelt's discussion with the committee of this country's policy of permitting sales of airplanes to France had made it plain the president was committed to a course of allowing other nations to obtain war supplies in this country as long as they could pay cash.

"Independent States"

The senator said the conversations had centered on the non-tariff countries, which he said were referred to as "independent states," and had not been confined to England and France.

One conflict of opinion over what was said concerned how far the president had gone in outlining the foreign policy involved.

One member of the committee said that as he recalled the discussion, the president had said he considered that, in the event of a world war, the frontier of the United States would be in France.

Two other committee members denied emphatically, however, that the president had said anything of this nature.

Accounts quoting Mr. Roosevelt as saying the United States, frontier was in France were bannered as good news in London and Paris papers. A Berlin daily said the chief executives' meeting with the committee was "without example since the days of the World war," adding "Washington stirs up the people to make business."

Italian Comment

The Italian press accused the president of "warmongering pessimism."

France was shown in a commerce department report today to have purchased less than $1,000,000 of planes and plane parts in 1938. Total exports of military and non-military aircraft—the department did not separate the figures—were $85,000,000.

The principal customers were The Netherlands, India, Japan, China, Argentina, Russia, United Kingdom, Canada, Turkey, Brazil, Mexico, Australia, Hong Kong and Sweden in that order.

The senators said Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that sales of planes to

Foreign PowersWar Secretary Aid Sees
Effort to Rule World
By Military Might

Washington—(AP)—Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, declared today the United States was forced to arm "against those who are determined to dominate world affairs by military power."

The administration's defense program, he told a radio forum of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is the nation's sole road to safety in a disordered world.

"To some people," he said, "the invasion of America may appear a mad dream, but even they will have to admit that the wild fantasies of yesterday have become the realities of today."

"Because of our tremendous coastline on two oceans and because of our far-flung possessions in distant seas, we need a navy second to none."

"Need Air Power"

"Because of our responsibilities to the western hemisphere under the Monroe doctrine, we need a powerful air corps."

Noting that President Roosevelt's defense message to congress emphasized increased air power and modern equipment, Johnson said:

"The airplane has become a psychological factor that no nation can afford to ignore. Whether the fear for its prowess is justifiable or not is beside the point."

"Nations that have neglected its development become jittery in their dread of its use against them."

"An adequate air force, ready at all times to resist invasion from the skies, will minimize hysteria in the face of danger."

Compromise Gets
Senate ApprovalUpper House Completes
Action on 725 Million Relief Bill

Washington—(AP)—The senate completed action on the $725,000,000 relief bill today by approving a proposed compromise with the house which the latter body plans to take final action on tomorrow.

The bill carries funds for the operation of the works progress administration from Feb. 7 to June 30, with a provision that if the sum appropriated is not adequate President Roosevelt may ask for yet more money.

The chief chance the senate-house conference committee made in the bill as passed by the senate last week was to eliminate provisions barring political activity by any government employee. Provision is made, however, to prevent political coercion of work relief employees by administrative officials or any other persons.

Hitler's Address

To Trade PeaceBritish Cabinet Hope for End of Tension in Economic Fight

London—(AP)—A hint that Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech might lead to a German-British peace in world trade was advanced today as the cabinet studied reaction to Premier Chamberlain's cautious proposal for a limitation of world armaments.

The suggestion of an end to trade warfare came from Robert Spear Hudson, secretary of the overseas trade department, who two weeks ago assailed the barter system Germany uses to get business as a "reversal to the practice of the middle ages."

Both Germany and England are now in bitter contest for the markets of southeastern Europe.

Hitler in his exposition of the German need of trade to feed his people declared "we must export or die," and Hudson in an address last night declared that his phrase was "one of the most encouraging things we have had for a very long time."

Plenty of Trade

"I believe that if we can re-establish confidence and remove tension—there is plenty of export trade to go around for both our countries."

"I think it may lead to a sensible arrangement being reached to develop markets at reasonable prices and a stop being put to cut-throat competition."

Hitler said on Monday night he was ready to go on with a trade war, particularly until the last demand for return of her war-torn colonies is settled.

Hudson in previous speeches declared Britain could win such a fight, but in an address before the German Chamber of Commerce in

$50 Fine

Edward Abel, 47, 1222 S. Monroe street, who last week pleaded not guilty of drunken driving in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan, this morning changed his plea to guilty.

The motorist was fined $50 and costs under both the city and state laws and his driving license was revoked for a year. He also was fined

$10 and costs for failing to stop after an accident. Judge Ryan remitted the fines in the latter and state cases upon payment of the city drunken driving fine and costs.

Abel was arrested by city police who charged he drove his car into a parked truck on Onida street on the evening of Jan. 14. Both his machine and the truck, driven by William Dutcher, route 2, Appleton, were damaged.

Northern Part of State to Bear Brunt of Heavy Storm;
Cold Wave Expected Thursday

Milwaukee—(AP)—Government meteorologists predicted today that only the northern part of Wisconsin would feel the full force of a heavy snowstorm sweeping eastward from the Rocky mountains.

Should the forecast be borne out, it will be the second time this week that a large section of the state has escaped devastating snow.

Monday's storm, which crippled Chicago, extended only a few miles into Wisconsin.

The new storm was centered in northeastern Nebraska this morning and was moving along a north-easterly course. Thus, said Frank Coleman, Milwaukee meteorologist, apparently will cross diagonally across Minnesota, through northern Wisconsin and over the western part of Lake Superior.

Expansion of

PROTECTION GOAL

Declares Ultimate Cost of Program Would Not Be Increased

Washington—(AP)—Congress was told today by Chairman Arthur J. Altmeier that millions more Americans could be brought under social security system without increasing the ultimate cost of the program.

Unemployment compensation, the social security board chairman testified before the house ways and means committee, is not only a social obligation but a matter of economic self-interest to the nation and its communities.

"Experience has already proved," Altmeier said, "that benefit payments help to maintain workers' purchasing power and thereby to stimulate lagging business and industrial activity."

With reference to old-age insurance, Altmeier contended the government was obligated to build "more adequate protection as rapidly as possible and in extending it to more of the nation's people."

Expansion Feasible

"The social security board," Altmeier asserted, "believes that it is administratively feasible to bring into the system large numbers of persons not yet covered. . . . All told, these groups include some six million men and women."

After outlining these and other proposed changes, the chairman said it was possible to make them without increasing the eventual annual cost of the system but that "the cost of paying benefits in the early years would be materially increased."

While the ways and means committee commenced its study of social security expansion, the capitol's corridors buzzed with talk of a conference President Roosevelt had yesterday with members of the senate military committee.

War and defense also were the topic before the house naval committee. Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, chief of naval aeronautics, testified before that group that he wanted sufficient men to provide two crews for each of the proposed 3,000 naval airplanes.

Other congressional activity included:

The house rules committee heard an argument between Chairman

Spaniards Get Fed
But Have to Work
For Their Board

Perpignan, France—(AP)—France, unwilling host to thousands of able-bodied but war-weary Spaniards, today began to put those who refused to return to Spain to work.

The first 200 Spanish government army deserters sent to the site of the French concentration camp at Argelès-Sur-Mer discovered they had to build it.

A tough mobile guard captain gave the 200 a brief introductory talk in Spanish on the wasteland at Argelès where they found wood for the barracks to house them and barbed wire for fences to enclose them.

"Gentlemen," said the captain. "You will be fed well and lodged well, but you must work for it. You are now in France, not Spain, and as long as you stay here you will be subjected to French military discipline."

He then put them to work digging foundations for barracks and setting posts for fences.

Crystal Falls Man Is Killed Riding on Sled

Iron River, Mich.—(AP)—Nick J. Ekola, 32, of Crystal Falls, coasting on a sled immediately in front of that used by his wife and child, was killed instantly when struck by an automobile last night.

Ekola's sled raced down a side-road hill and onto United States highway 2 as the car driven by Oliver Kinney, 23, of Iron River, came along.

Kinney, a boxer, was returning from Iron Mountain where he had participated in an amateur bout.

Describes Mine Cave-in Which Took Five Lives

Picher, Okla.—(AP)—Louis Haneberg, critically injured in a mine cave-in that cost five lives, said today he "thought the world was coming to an end" when a huge slab of stone tumbled loose 300 feet down in the earth.

"I don't know just how it happened, it came so quickly," he said from his hospital bed. "There was a great rumbling and falling of rock."

"I ran and ran down the drift. Pieces of rock knocked me down two or three times before I reached a soft spot."

Searchers recovered the crushed bodies of Jess "Doc" Crossland, 33, of Picher, father of two children, and Freddie McComber, 24, of Galena, Kans.

H. C. Snodgrass, Kansas district mine inspector, said three men still were missing. Henry Butram, 30, Galena; Frank Porter, 40, Wilburton, Okla.; and Oral Campbell, 33, Galena.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Washington—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, dean of the senate, was ill with a "very severe case of grippe" today and was taken in an ambulance to Emergency hospital. Mrs. Borah, who described the senator's condition, said he had been in bed since yesterday.

Asked whether Borah had pneumonia, she said "that's what we're trying to ward off." Aids at the senator's office said he was not expected to be able to return to work for several weeks. The 73-year-old Idaho Republican has served in the senate continuously since 1907.

Lehman Urged to Probe Slaying of
George Weinberg

Lawyer Told Fingerprints
Of Dead Man Not
On Weapon

New York—(AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman was urged today by a Nassau county lawyer to investigate a report that the fingerprints of George Weinberg, a key witness in the retrial of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines, were not found on the gun with which he allegedly committed suicide last Sunday.

George E. Mulry, Mineola, Long Island, sent this telegram to the governor:

"Informed believable source that Weinberg's fingerprints are not on revolver of Dewey hiring. Check. Confiscate revolver for confirmation."

The gun used by Weinberg, it was reported at the time of the shooting, had been taken from the coat of one of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's detectives guarding Weinberg and two other witnesses, J. Richard Davis and Harry Schoenhaus, at a White Plains, N. Y., retreat.

Testimony Read

Meanwhile, Weinberg's testimony at Hines' first trial was read today at the second trial by Assistant District Attorney Herman McCarthy.

Mulry said a client in New York City, whom he described as being "on the inside of things," told him Weinberg's prints were not found on the alleged suicide weapon and that no fingerprints, in fact, were found on it after the shooting.

In the official report on the case, Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner, gave the opinion that Weinberg had slain himself with a .38-caliber gun taken from the coat of Joseph Kaitz.

Dewey said in court yesterday that he had witnesses who would testify that Weinberg had been depressed greatly while waiting to repeat his testimony at Hines' trial on charges of furnishing protection for policy racketeers.

The prosecutor also said he understood Weinberg had been suffering from a stomach ailment.

Dewey dismissed Mulry's theory by saying cases frequently arose in which fingerprints did not appear on a gun "because the gun was held in such a manner that they left no imprint."

Breathes Into Baby's
Mouth to Save Life

Butler, Pa.—(AP)—A baby boy born while his father was gone for food owed his life today to a country doctor who breathed into his mouth for more than an hour to bring him life.

The baby arrived earlier than expected while the mother, Mrs. Robert Zeller, was alone. Dr. A. H. Jahn got there 25 minutes later, found the baby cold and the heart still.

Refusing to give up the doctor began breathing into the baby's mouth. For a half-hour, he said, there was no sign of consciousness.

Another 45 minutes brought a weak sign, then later another, until the baby began breathing regularly.

'Employment Peace Act,' New Wisconsin Labor Measure, Is Presented in State Assembly

Madison—(AP)—A new state labor law, to be known as the "employment peace act," was proposed in the assembly today in a bill introduced by Reuben W. Peterson (R.), of Berlin.

Peterson said the bill was introduced at the request of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture.

The bill sets up an administrative body called the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, consisting of three full-time members, at a salary of $5,000 each, who are prohibited from doing any other work. One member would be designated chairman by the governor. The bill also contains a $50,000 annual appropriation for the board, exclusive of salaries.

Although the bill provides that a closed shop or "all-union" contract could be put in force through a secret vote of 75 per cent of the employees affected, it was understood supporters would agree to an amendment reducing the percentage to 66 2/3, or a two-thirds vote.

In the case of an appeal from a board ruling, the complainant would apply for relief from the circuit court in the county in which the plant is located. Under present law all appeals are directed to the Dane county circuit court.

The bill would outlaw sitdown strikes, secondary boycotts and picketing, and require 10-day notice before a strike affecting perishable farm products. The right to strike would be limited to majority groups of employees only. Employers could ask the board for rulings on elections.

Financial statements by union officers could be demanded by members, and unions could be cited as "unfair" for violation of 10 provisions of the bill. Instead of the board fixing arbitration bargaining units, any majority in a plant division would be able to organize its own union.

The existing labor law was passed at the 1937 session.

Defends Perkins
In Bridges Case

Labor Department Solicitor Says Secretary Acted Properly

Washington—(AP)—Gerard D. Reilly, labor department solicitor, told the house judiciary committee today that Secretary Perkins had acted properly in suspending deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, CIO maritime leader, pending a supreme court decision.

Testifying behind closed doors on a resolution directing impeachment charges against Mrs. Perkins, himself and John L. Hougheling, commissioner of immigration, Reilly was reported to have asserted there had been "no soft-pedaling" of the Bridges case.

The solicitor said, a committee member reported, that Secretary Perkins should be held blameless in suspending the Bridges action until the supreme court decides a similar case involving the question of whether membership in the Communist party was adequate grounds for deportation.

Dykstra Fears Salary
Cuts May be Necessary

Madison—(AP)—President Clarence A. Dykstra said today salary and wage cuts probably would be inevitable if reduction in the University of Wisconsin budget proposed by Governor Heil is approved by the legislature.

"Unless the university is able to get some more income, we would not be able to absorb a cut of $400,000 a year without going into the personnel of the university," he said.

Dykstra asserted the reduction in state aid might also require an increase in student fees.

However, he added that he believed the governor and legislature will provide funds sufficient to prevent pay cuts.

"When we discuss all the figures before the governor and the legislative committee, I am sure they will see it in this way," he said.

3 are Sentenced
For Conspiracy to Break Liquor Laws

Milwaukee—(AP)—Three Milwaukeeans, one a former wholesale grocer, were sentenced to the federal penitentiary today for conspiracy to violate the liquor laws.

A fourth defendant, George Marnoff of Chicago, was ordered into the custody of the United States marshal for one day, the period expiring at noon today.

Two others, former agents of the federal alcohol tax unit, await sentence. Their cases were continued to Friday.

All except the former grocer, Max Gronik, 71, pleaded guilty. Gronik, on trial since Monday before a jury in federal court president over by Judge Patrick T. Stone, changed his plea today and entered one nolo contendere (I do not wish to contend).

Gronik was sentenced to prison for 18 months.

Alvin Lorber, 42, who admitted having operated several illicit stills, was sentenced to prison for two years. Al Singer, 46, was given a sentence of one year and a day.

The former government agents, Henry J. Baseman and Edwin J. Steffen, were accused of having been in the pay of Lorber.

Get Stays of Sentence

Five days stays of sentence were granted Gronik and Lorber. Gronik, accused of supplying corn sugar to Lorber, was visibly shaken as his attorney, G. F. Clifford of Green Bay, entered the nolo contendere plea. His counsel asked leniency, saying government testimony of the amount of sugar sold was "grossly exaggerated," and that Gronik was the father of nine children.

The "decent thing you've done in this matter is not to go on the stand and perjure yourself," Judge Stone told Gronik. "Your conduct has been disgraceful to yourself, your family and your friends. A fine would not be adequate in your case."

"I don't want a prison sentence. . . . It will disgrace my family," Gronik protested.

"Your family is already disgraced because of your conduct," the court replied. Judge Stone then pronounced sentence. Gronik was near collapse.

Aged Woman Found
Beaten to Death in
Her Chicago Home

Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Johanna Schoberg, 89, was found beaten to death today, apparently by a prowler, in the small home where she had lived alone for many years.

Police Captain Patrick O'Connell said the aged woman apparently was slain by a burglar who entered the home in the 3200 block of North Clark street, in search of supposed hidden wealth.

A screen over a window was removed and the pane broken.

Captain O'Connell said Mrs. Schoberg apparently awakened as the prowler searched the house and struggled with him.

Asks Chilean Congress
To Set Up Relief Fund

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—President Pedro Aguirre Cerdas today asked the Chilean congress to set up a 2,500,000,000 peso ($125,000,000) fund for relief and rehabilitation of last week's earthquake zone, where estimates of dead ran as high as 30,000 persons.

Congress was expected to grant his request without hesitation. The sum, one and a half times greater than Chile's annual budget, probably will be raised by special taxes.

Reestablishment of railway service facilitated relief work, bringing women, children and injured persons from the quake zone.

Four Die When Home
Burns in Cleveland

Cleveland—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin swept through the second floor of a frame rooming house on Cleveland's west side today, burning four persons to death and injuring two others seriously.

The dead were Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 23-year-old WPA seamstress; her two sons, Clate, 2, and Everett, 5; and an unidentified youth about 17 years of age.

Taken to a hospital with second-degree burns were Benjamin H. Brand, 31, WPA worker, and Stephen Toth, 32.

Senate Rejects 3-Year Limit for Badger Governors

Votes Down Resolution Presented by River Falls Republican

Madison—(P)—With party lines split, the senate rejected today a resolution by Kenneth White, (R), of River Falls, for a constitutional amendment to prohibit the governor serving more than three terms.

An outgrowth of former Governor LaFollette's bid for a fourth term, the resolution stirred up a political rumpus before it finally was defeated 22 to 10. All Democrats and a few Republicans joined with the Progressives in casting the negative votes.

White said his proposal was not aimed at LaFollette personally but "the spirit" he represents. He charged the former governor would go to any extent to further his own personal career and perpetuate himself in office.

The resolution would have no effect on the 1940 elections since it would have to be approved by two successive legislatures and then be submitted to the voters before it could be incorporated in the constitution.

Shearer's Objection
Conrad Shearer, (R), Kenosha, objected to the proposal on the ground it would take away some of the rights of the people. He asserted that it is safe to let the voters determine whether a governor has served his usefulness and should be retired.

Oscar Paulson (P), of LaCrosse, contended the resolution was aimed solely at the Progressives, asserting "it has been a long time since a Republican or Democratic governor has served more than one or two terms."

Democratic Floor Leader Harry Benson, of Washington, predicting that "the third party movement is doomed," said he would not put anything in the way of Governor LaFollette's running for any office he wants to.

Philip Nelson (P), Maple, declared the resolution should be amended to limit the number of columns a governor can appoint, especially the number in one county. He referred to Governor Hell's action in appointing 43 colonels to his military staff.

Address Seen as Promoting Peace

London Jan. 23 he indicated his government was ready to help Germany upward economically in exchange for political appeasement.

That political appeasement was the theme of Chamberlain's address to parliament yesterday, in which he advanced his proposal that armament reduction or at least limitation would be proof of peaceful intentions of the dictators.

The German press gave a cordial reception to the speech but pointed much of its comment toward Hitler's demands for colonies which as one Berlin paper put it "replaced the question of compensation for lost profits" since the war.

While it was known that the aging Chamberlain was eager to cap his career by obtaining European armaments limitations—as a business man he is shocked by the huge cost—it generally was agreed that Britain would move slowly toward this objective.

Telegraph Firm Will Pay Its Income Taxes

Madison, Wis.—(P)—The American Telephone and Telegraph company has notified the state tax commission it will pay an income tax assessment of $24,017 for the years 1927 to 1933 without further litigation, the commission announced yesterday.

Commission officials said the decision paves the way for collection of a total of $500,000, representing the sum to be paid at once and taxes to be levied on the years 1934 to 1938.

At the commission hearings the company protested payment of state income taxes on the ground it was engaged exclusively in interstate business.

High School's 1939 Yearbook to Feature New Senior Building

Members of the Clarion staff, yearbook of Appleton High school met this morning to set the deadline for the first printer's deadline today when copy for half the book was turned in ready for the linotype machine. The senior, junior and sophomore administration sections are now complete, as well as any pages of the activities and athletics sections.

Swinging away from the general style of last year's annual, this year's editors, Mary Ellen Pomeroy and Roger Jones, have decided to include more narrative and descriptive stories of school life than has been the custom in recent years. There has been no reduction, however, in the amount of space devoted to pictures.

The 1939 publication will feature the new building. In the enlarged opening section students will find interior and exterior views of the school.

He then was said to have declared that the government considered it the wisest policy to aid European Democracies to re-arm so that they could balk threats of war by being prepared for any eventuality.

Criticism Continues
There were strong indications, however, that the president's explanation of the government's interest in the French mission had not stilled minority criticism of the move within the committee.

This criticism took the form of protests against the secrecy which has cloaked committee investigation of the matter as well as the White House conference.

While some committeemen who have been critical of the administration's moves said they were satisfied there was no proposal to create a credit here for French purchase of the planes, others said they wished to delve further into the treasury's part in the project.

The committee heard last week that a representative of the French air ministry had been permitted by treasury authority to inspect the latest type of light bomber.

Asked at his press conference whether the government would have approved sale of planes to Germany or Italy, Mr. Roosevelt said that was an "if" question. No such orders, he pointed out, have been received.

The president told reporters that no military secrets were divulged in making the French sales.

PAPER'S COMMENT

Berlin—(P)—The Berliner Nachrichten splashed the headline "America's Frontier on the Rhine" across its front page tonight and described President Roosevelt's meeting with the senate military affairs committee yesterday as "without example since the days of the world war."

In a two-column dispatch under a New York dateline, Nachrichten quoted American newspapers as saying Roosevelt had told committee members that the United States must back up democracies in any war against the totalitarian states with arms deliveries.

"Unbelievable agitation of Roosevelt after the fuhrer's peace address" was a sub-head on the dispatch.

Another said, "Washington stirs up the people to make business."

"This action of Roosevelt's," the dispatch said, "is without example since the days of the world war. It is a second Wilson who is deliberately walking in the footsteps of the Democratic predecessor in office."

"As a result of these conversations it is clear that the United States finally has broken with its neutrality policy."

"The intervention policy of Washington in European matters has become a fact. Yesterday's committee decision assumes a fundamental importance for Germany and her friendly totalitarian nations. Washington yesterday officially became the center of war-inciting hatred against totalitarian states."

OFFICIALS REJOICE

Paris—(P)—First editions of afternoon newspapers in Paris used scathing headlines today to proclaim that President Roosevelt had declared the "frontiers of the United States are in France."

Although members of the government refused to comment on reports of the president's meeting with the senate military committee yesterday on the ground that his statements were to a closed session, there was undoubted jubilation in official circles.

The events were in observance of the sixteenth anniversary of the fascist militia's organization.

While a brief speech had been expected by many, the lack of one occasioned no great surprise. Diplo-matic quarters in the last few days had come to the belief that Premier Mussolini would mark time until the end of the Spanish war before giving any official indications of what plans he might have—plans which agitation by the fascist press have indicated revolved about a demand upon France to grant colonial concessions in Africa.

GERMAN TRADE PLANS

Berlin—(P)—It became increasingly apparent today that Chancellor Hitler's determination to increase German trade might put Nazi political demands temporarily in second place.

While the press kept up the colonial arguments which Hitler strongly advanced in his reichstag speech Monday, the economics ministry concentrated on the more immediate question of export.

It was announced German and British industrial representatives would meet in Dusseldorf Feb. 28 to consider mutual trade and economic problems.

A German representative department for Moscow, and usually informed Germans hunted at the possibility of trade or political negotiations.

The press gave prominent display to reports of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in which he offered to negotiate upon evidence of deeds along with friendly words in favor of peace.

Chamberlain's speech on the whole pleased German officialdom for its testimony to Hitler as a man of peace.

Stitches Prove Dead Shark Bit His Wrist

Los Angeles—(P)—G. Harold Janeway has three stitches in his wrist to prove he was bitten by a man-eating shark in a hotel lobby.

The 25-foot fish was a skeleton on exhibition. Janeway stuck his hand into its mouth. The jaw snapped shut and seven rows of sharp teeth did their work.

DRUNK SENTENCED

Edward Kerney, 30, Rochester, Minn., pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 30 days in the county detention camp by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Kerney, who was arrested by Kaukauna police, indicated he would serve the sentence.

War on Syphilis In Chicago Begins Its Third Year

Chicago—(P)—A city-wide campaign against syphilis in Chicago entered its third year today with a goal of 1,000,000 blood tests in 1939.

Directors of the nation's first drive of its kind said in two years the mass effort had:

Brought syphilis out from the whispering stages and made it a common topic of the day.

Doubled the number of blood tests for the disease nearly six times.

Increased the number of cases reported and hence under medical surveillance.

Under impetus of the drive, Chicago Board of Health reports showed there were 332,479 blood tests for syphilis made by the city laboratories in 1938, compared with 61,787 in 1936. There were 18,497 syphilis cases reported last year, compared with 9,544 in 1936. Tests in 1938 were triple the number in 1937. A syphilitic population of 13,901 was reported under treatment at the end of last year.

Social Hygiene Day

The observance today of a national hygiene day gave the campaign a boost because William J. Campbell, Illinois director for the National youth administration, said that beginning today 12,000 NTYA youths in the state, including 4,000 in Chicago, would take complete physical examinations including syphilis blood tests.

Plans for 1939 announced by co-ordinators included a request to the city's 6,000 practicing physicians to take an average of 100 blood samples each, or 600,000 for the year, and an expectation that board of health crews would take perhaps 350,000 more.

Dr. Robert A. Black, acting president of the board of health, said emphasis would be placed on education, too, this year. Physicians, health board and United States Public Health Service representatives were scheduled to speak before industrial, school, civic, church and clinic groups, distributing pamphlets and urging citizens to take tests.

Civil Service Exams for Service School Hopefuls

Post-Cresting Washington Bureau—Washington—Rep. Joshua L. Johns, Algoma Republican, announces that he "will give all aspirants to the Naval and Military Academies an equal opportunity" and will furnish information regarding the Academies, admission requirements and so on, to any applicant.

"In order to give all aspirants an equal opportunity," he says, "I have adopted the policy of selecting the appointees as a result of an impartial examination conducted by the U. S. Civil Service Commission. The appointments are made exactly in the order of their rating in this examination, both as to the principal appointment and alternates."

The Congressmen will have no appointments to make to Annapolis until 1940, to West Point until 1941. Appointments to West Point must be made one year in advance of the date of admission, which is the first weekday in July each year. Nomination for Annapolis may be made at any time between June 1939 and March 4, 1940. The candidates will be examined either February 14, or April 17, 1940.

Candidates must be at least 16 years of age for Annapolis, at least 17 for West Point, where they must also measure at least 5 feet 4 inches. Both academies require physical fitness, to be determined by a medical examination.

Hitler and Chamberlain Talks Brighten Europe's Peace Hopes

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—European peace finally bids fair to thumb at least a little ride from the dictatorship-democracy combatants.

Nazi Leader Hitler, chief exponent of totalitarian rule, and British Premier Chamberlain, champion of democracy, have agreed on one great issue—the vital necessity of economic rehabilitation, that is, increase in plain, everyday trade.

This point was emphasized both by Hitler, in his book-length reichstag speech Monday when he told the world where he stood, and by Chamberlain last week in an address intended as a warning to the Nazi chieftain to go slow.

What this boils down to is that Germany and England—and every other country for that matter—want time out from controversy to put their exchequers in order.

True, Hitler warned that interference in Germany's business affairs by the democracies would lead to an economic war. Still, that is easier to bear than a rain of bombs out of the sky.

Armament Necessary
Speaking at Birmingham, Chamberlain referred to England's vast rearmament program as a "grim necessity," and in the next breath told this important manufacturing city that he was confident the directors of industry weren't "losing sight of the importance to this country of our export trade, which is the basis of our economic well-being, and to a large extent the source of our economic and financial strength."

The premier, who almost single-handed pulled Britain out of the great depression, said he would be inclined to take a rosy view of business prospects for this year but for one consideration. That was political tension in international affairs. He declared this justified the efforts of the British government in the past about a better understanding between nations.

The emotional Hitler put more drama into the thing, but the idea was the same, when he cried that Germany must "export or die." Der fuhrer laid it down this way, in part:

"We have to export in order to buy foodstuffs and, moreover, as these exports require raw materials, all of which we do not possess, we are forced to export still more in order to assure ourselves of these extra raw materials..."

Teachers Begin Battle to Save Their Tenure Law

Rural Legislators Lead Fight to Abolish Job Protection Measure

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Against what appears to be a hostile legislative majority, Wisconsin teachers this week began a campaign to prevent repeal of the teachers' tenure act as provided in the James bill now before the state legislature.

Strength of the anti-tenure movement according to evidence thus far available, comes from the rural school boards of Wisconsin who hire thru the K0 d T3 AAR TT TT the great bulk of the teachers and who apparently resent the restrictions which the law places on their hiring and firing prerogatives.

Under the tenure act teachers who have served a five year probationary period automatically are protected their jobs, cannot be dismissed except for specific causes enumerated in the act. Whether marriage is a cause for dismissal has been a moot question in the year since the act has been effective, and is now before the state supreme court for decision.

Farmers Opposed
That the opposition to the law comes from the rural areas is significant, for the legislature this session is dominated by rural lawmakers. According to the Wisconsin Education association, a professional organization which counts more than 20,000 teachers as members, the urban school boards have accepted the law without opposition.

It is known that several important administrative leaders in the legislature are vigorously opposed to the measure, and will work for its repeal. One of them is Bradley McIntyre, chairman of the powerful house committee on finance.

It was also apparent, however, that some of the conservatives are still friendly to the tenure law, which is often described as "civil service for teachers."

Albert D. Shimick, of Koutenue county, who supported the measure actively in the 1937 legislature session, and who braved the opposition of local school boards in the last campaign to befriend it.

Shimick, by profession a teacher, points out that the supply of rural teachers is not as heavy as it once was, and that pay raises or security of jobs will have to be provided in order to attract young people into the teaching field.

The Wisconsin Education association, which sponsored the tenure act and which has kept up a barrage of propaganda in its favor in recent months, today was joined by the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers (AFL).

Makes Statement
"The Wisconsin Federation of Teachers calls on all progressive-minded people of Wisconsin, both individuals and groups, to express their opposition to this proposed destructive legislation" (The James bill), said Amelia Yeager, president of the group.

"It is disheartening, to say the least, that in Wisconsin, a state in which progressive legislation is traditional, an elected representative of the people could be found to sponsor a bill to wipe out the teachers' tenure law, but such seems to be the case."

"What the civil service law is to state employees, the tenure law is to the teachers of Wisconsin. Certainly the great essential to education is freedom — freedom in presenting and studying all the facts. If for any reason this freedom is curtailed, real education is crippled."

In a message addressed to "The Educational workers of Wisconsin," Governor Heil prior to his election gave voice to the belief that "on education depends the fate of democracy," and he stated further, "I shall be happy to cooperate to that end that the youth of Wisconsin shall have educational opportunities second to none."

"In the face of this declaration from the leader of his party, Wisconsin teachers may well resent the introduction of a bill in the assembly by Republican Glenn J. James, Montfort, to repeal the teachers' tenure law," the federation president declared.

Infantile Paralysis Topic of Rotary Club

Clintonville—A talk on "Infantile Paralysis" was given Monday noon to the Rotary club by one of its members, Dr. James H. Murphy. This was a timely subject for President Roosevelt's birthday on which funds were being raised throughout the nation for fighting the disease. Dr. Murphy gave a history of the malady and explained the progress which has been made in combatting it.

The district governor will visit the Clintonville Rotary club next Monday, when a dinner will be held at Hotel Marston in the evening. Rotary Annas will be guests for the occasion.

Miss Irene Schmiedekne, a teacher at Alcona, spent the weekend in this city at the home of Mrs. J. E. Long.

Mrs. A. D. Kawalsky returned Sunday from a three weeks stay at Appleton with her daughter, Mrs. John Goodrich.

Sixteen guests were entertained at dinner Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martha Falk, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Anna Johnson, sister of Mrs. Falk. Cards were played during the afternoon and evening.

George Berné, Arlene Morris and Norma Snider returned to Oshkosh Monday to resume their studies at the state teachers college after a few days visit at their homes here.

Heil Cuts 5 Millions Off State Budget; Says State Must Raise 21 Millions More to Pay Bills

specific purpose and expending these funds for other purposes." That amounts to borrowing, he said, "and is but a means of overcoming the intent of Section 6 of Article VII, and should be discouraged." The practice of deceiving the taxpayers of this state must stop.

He announced that as a result of eight years of deficits, "the state is in such financial position that it is imperative to balance the budget."

"This can only mean two alternatives," he said.

"1. The reduction of state expenditures.

"2. Increased revenues.

"The proper course must be between these two alternatives. We must reduce expenditures and increase revenues."

He informed the lawmakers that the estimated revenues of $45,200,000 for the next two years will be almost $9,000,000 below the estimated revenues available in the two year period ending on June 30.

He said his budget is a "business-like budget" and will not confuse "the legislature and fool the people and place a large share of the state spending power in the hands of one man."

Heil pointed out that his recommended appropriations of $66,750,000 amounts to almost $30,000,000 less than had been requested by departments, institutions, and other state agencies.

He added also that "it is apparent from these figures (his budget recommendations) that if the legislature adopts the budget as I have submitted it, appropriations will exceed revenues by $21,550,000."

"A revenue bill sufficient to meet this shortage must necessarily be considered by the legislature."

Significantly, Heil said that "no reductions are recommended in charitable and old age pension funds, but these appropriations have been set at a minimum figure as dictated by the finances of the state."

"This is the course of reason, not of inclination. Additional funds for this purpose must await passage of a suitable revenue measure."

However, he said the budget as recommended contained "all the fundamental needs."

Take Up Slack
"It is unfortunate that even though this budget is lower than the budget of the present two year period, it is necessary to raise additional revenues. This, of course, occurs through no fault of our own, but rather because preceding administrations have failed to meet their obligations."

"We must now take up the financial slack on both ends of the rope. We must bring the budget into balance by the joint process of reducing expenses and increasing revenues."

Heil's budget figures raised many questions.

Standing out was the fact that the budget as it rested this afternoon on the desks of legislators was not nearly complete. The executives had, for example, omitted a number of departments whose status is uncertain because of the confusion created by the reorganization of state government, and the following veto of that reorganization. Among them were the farm and home credit administration, the beverage tax division, the securities division, and others.

They will probably be provided for in subsequent legislation, with subsequent appropriations which will raise the total recommended by the governor in his executive budget.

Stiffest single blow was taken by the University of Wisconsin, which, ironically enough, had hoped to win an increase in funds almost equal to the amount which was taken away from it.

The state school's budget was reduced by $1,045,038, for the two year period. The budget was set at $3,511,369 for next year, and $3,515,966 for the following year.

Million Dollar Cut
Second biggest lump reduction came in the budget for the state's seventeen penal and charitable institutions,

Robert Billings of this city enrolled at the school for the second semester, which began Tuesday, Jan. 31.

who were recommended a cut of $1,023,895, and which had requested just about twice the amounts they will get under the Heil budget, $3,851,146 next year, and $3,851,146 for the following year.

Education aids, excluding elementary and high schools, were cut a total of $469,000. Heaviest cuts were taken by the county normal schools, county supervising teachers, vocational education, and school transportation. A $100,000 fund for special aid to distressed high schools was also omitted from the budget.

State boards, departments, and commissions must prepare for drastic paring of payrolls and expenses under Heil's budget. He recommended a $613,000 slash for all of them, which must be taken out of state employees' salaries since that is the biggest item of expenditure in the expenses of the state government proper.

Entering the field of education again, the governor recommended a $377,000 slash in the cost of operating the nine state teachers' colleges and the Stout Institute, which again will probably mean salary reductions for faculty and maintenance employees.

Heil's pension allowances represent increases over the present biennium but apparently do not contemplate increases in the size of pension checks. While blind and children's pension appropriations remain substantially the same in the budget, he recommended $3,788,000 a year for old age pensions, which is exactly the same as the sum contained in the LaFollette budget for the current year.

Heil's total recommendations for old-age pensions are high because the LaFollette budget for the first year of the biennium provided for only $3,150,000.

More For Asylums
Here and there the Heil budget proposed increases in expenditures. Notable was the recommendation for increases to counties for maintaining chronic insane, and for county tuberculosis sanatoria. For the sanatoria Heil recommends $750,000 a year, compared with $650,000 during the previous two years, and for the insane asylums, $1,480,000 a year compared with $1,319,384.

Curiously enough, in view of Heil's recent public statements, the budget message did not suggest diversion of highway revenues by law in order to meet the administration's financial emergency, nor the kind of taxes which the governor feels will be necessary to balance the budget.

He has already gone on record in favor of diversion of highway funds, and has suggested too that a sales tax on certain commodities may be necessary to pay the state's rising public welfare bill.

He said, however, "that the solution to the problem will require courage, common sense, and hard work. In this effort the governor and the legislature must cooperate in an endeavor to work out a final budget which will serve the best interests of the taxpayers of Wisconsin."

Amendments Coming
It seemed inevitable today that the executive's budget bill will be plastered with amendments by legislators who insist on greater state aids for school and other local governmental purposes, and by the partisans of the old age pension advocates—who have set up a lobby in the capitol—and who have been led to believe that the new Republican administration will favor pension grants even higher than the presently unattainable $30 monthly maximum.

It was also pointed out that the lag between appropriations and receipts will not be as great as Heil's budget indicates on casual examination.

"The Heil budget estimates do not include the dividend tax and the pension surtax, both of which will expire this year, but which will undoubtedly be renewed.

If the two levies continue to produce as they have produced since their original enactment, it is likely that the slack between appropriations and receipts will be reduced to about $16,000,000.

Because of the powerful educational lobby it seemed certain that the school aid reductions will mean bitter fighting in the legislative houses when the budget bill comes up for passage.

More significant, however, are the sensational disclosures — for the first time by a public official in the capitol — on state deficits, which have been piling up at a steadily increasing rate since the first LaFollette administration back in 1931, until during the present biennium it is estimated that excess of appropriations over receipts will amount to $16,590,900.

On June 30 of this year, according to the financial statement which Heil submitted to his legislative helpmates today, his administration will have appropriations in force of more than $40,000,000, but will have in its coffers only $4,928,247 with which to honor them.

The secret to this seemingly impossible situation is that the treasury's obligations, or appropriations, fall due at different times of the year, and the cash balance is being augmented constantly by state receipts. In addition the state treasury has the use of the state highway commission's receipts, which are shown as credits in the highway fund, but which are actually used for general state purposes, as the low balance of $4,000,000 shows.

Crisis Approaching
The fact, however, that in successive bienniums the total state spending has far exceeded receipts may mean that the state this year was approaching a financial crisis. If the deficit is allowed to continue, observers pointed out, the amount of appropriations in force and due at any one time might some day exceed the treasury balance on hand to meet them.

Thus might arise insolvency, payless pay-days for state employees, or a cessation of aids to municipalities.

One of Philip LaFollette's principal jobs in the last campaign was to defend himself from charges that the LaFollette government knowingly diverted highway receipts in order to conceal the fact that the state's budget was unbalanced.

The financial statement issued by Heil today, however, showed that the practice was not invented during the last two years, but that the lag between in-take and out-ro has been increasing tremendously for almost a decade.

Politically Heil's budget was also interesting for observers.

Prime fact, probably, is the conspicuous failure of the administration to top off $15,000,000 as Governor Heil had promised during his campaign tour of the state.

An eloquent proof of the condition of the state's exchequer is Heil's request for more revenues in contrast to his declarations earlier that he would reduce state taxes.

Also worth noticing, however, was the fact that the governor did observe his intention of curtailing state payrolls, which may mean a drastic cut in the number of state employees, salary reductions, or both.

It was pointed out that with the tenor of Heil's legislature, which abounds with spending ideas, and some schemes for raising revenues that the administration's appropriations before the year's end may well equal the $71,000,000 which its predecessor appropriated in 1937.

Foremost among the items which have yet to be allowed is that of relief, which amounted to $3,700,000 in the LaFollette appropriations, and which was skipped entirely in the Heil recommendations. Experts declare that at least $5,000,000 will be necessary for the next two years for relief aids, which will bring the total practically to the 1937 level.

Significant for the howl it will create is the trimming of a million dollars from the giant of Wisconsin's public educational institutions, the University of Wisconsin. In the face of President Dykstra's pleas that buildings are outworn, students increasing in numbers year by year, and administrative expenses rising, the governor reduced its allotments by about 12 per cent.

Oil, CYO Squads Meet Tonight for Cage League Title

Clash in Final Contest of First Half Elimination Playoff

Kaukauna—The city basketball league's first half champion will be crowned this evening as the D-X Oils and CYO squads meet in the final match of an elimination playoff. The two teams tied with the Mellow Brews in the regular season which ended Jan. 23, each winning four games and losing one. The Mellow Brews were eliminated by the Oils last Sunday, 24 to 22. Tonight's contest will begin at 8 o'clock in the high school gymnasium.

The fast first half finish in city league play has been reflected in record attendances the last two weekends, and it is probable that the season's biggest crowd will be on hand tonight.

By virtue of its victory over the Mellow Brews the Oils will go into the game slight favorites. They have eight players of about equal ability, and always present a strong lineup no matter which five is in the game. The CYO team is built around several players, the loss on any one of which would be a serious handicap. Against the Brews the CYO took a big lead and almost lost out when Captain Ken Vils and John Niesz left the contest with four fouls in the first half.

Asks Commission to Ignore 'Propaganda' In Fight Over Power

Kaukauna—A telegram asking the Wisconsin public service commission to "disregard communications and propaganda of power company agents," signed by William Galmbacher, chairman of the Citizens' Protective league meeting held here last Thursday, has been sent to the Madison boby, it was revealed today.

The telegram refers to a letter of Mayor Lewis F. Nelson's to the commission in which Nelson said the resolution sent the commission after the meeting was not a true expression of the people of Kaukauna, as no action on it was taken.

The text of Galmbacher's telegram is as follows:

"Disregard communications and propaganda of power company agents. Hoolihan resolution to your body presented at citizens protest mass meeting adopted as read. Organized attempt to disrupt meeting must not be fog issue."

FROM BARCELONA

News reports of the occupation of Barcelona by the army of General Franco include mention of a circumstance which is significant and, perhaps, prophetic. An Italian division shared with Moors the honor of leading the entry into the doomed city.

This is a detail which gives substance to the theory that the real winners of the Spanish war are not the Spanish people but Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, who, if they did not actually foment the war, at least recognized very early in the struggle the possibilities of military and political advantage which it opened to them.

Audacious opportunists, the two fellow travelers availed themselves quickly and effectively of the chances fate had thrown in their path and, while the destinies of England and France rested in the hands of inept, somnolent statesmen, they entrenched themselves in their control of the European scene.

Now, what will be the consequences of a Franco victory? Britain's route to India through the Mediterranean, whose freedom has for centuries been a cardinal point in British foreign policy, is endangered. Even now, before the final triumph, German guns menace the straits from the Spanish mainland and Spanish Morocco.

And what of France? There are students of recent European history who say that France has been reduced by the Peace of Munich to the status of a second-rate nation. But is that true? France, menaced on the east, the southeast, and now on the south, is still a powerful nation.

Whether the victory of Franco will be a blessing or a curse to the Spanish people is a question still to be answered. Its consequences with respect to the future of Europe involve no such uncertainties. It is a great triumph for the dictators.

TOURIST ATTRACTIONS

Good roads are not enough to attract tourists, the roads must be interesting—that is they must traverse areas of attractive scenery or lead to points that offer something unusual of historical significance, or are suited to the convenience and pleasure of the travelers. That is the opinion of H. S. Tuttle, highway commissioner of Vilas county, given to the delegates to the Wisconsin road school.

Mr. Tuttle estimates the annual volume of tourist industry in Wisconsin at $250,000,000, but says that Michigan's volume is about 50 per cent greater though Wisconsin's roads are unexcelled, and her natural attractions are equal to if not greater than Michigan's. His remedy is to widen the right of way, plan and develop scenic beauty, mark historic spots connected with the fur trade, lumbering, or the Indian, and provide picnic grounds, rest stations and interesting vistas for the tourist trade.

Mr. Tuttle's suggestions are both practical and inexpensive. One great obstacle to local programs for the entertainment of tourists lies in the fact that items of surpassing interest to tourists are so commonplace to the residents of a given community that it is often not recognized at its true value. To the citizen of the northern counties the winding wooded road may be an abomination, but the same road may bring gasps of surprise and appreciation to the tourist from the prairie regions.

Some appreciation of scenic beauty is to be found in the location of many Wisconsin roads, but there is much that can be done to enhance a motorist's trip through the north country. A turn in the highway may provide a glimpse of beauty at 60 miles per hour, but a safe turnout, or a short side trip that permits a view of a waterfall, a wooded hillside, or a curving shoreline is a much greater attraction. We have just begun to appreciate the value of the tourist trade, and to make the scenery of the state available to them, but for another $100,000,000 a year there is much more that we could do.

MR. PATMAN FINDS THE GOING ROUGH

That sterling patriot from Texas, Congressman Patman, has misinterpreted Danton's exhortation to the effect that victory is composed of three parts "Courage, courage, and courage." Mr. Patman has failed to observe the refinement between courage and gall.

But the House instinctively felt the difference and when Mr. Patman went about the business of boosting the bill that has been bringing him in a regular revenue of golden eggs the rest of the membership literally fell upon him, tooth, nail and heel. Congressmen wanted to know how much Mr. Patman received by way of side-pay for posing as the chief exponent, pioneer, and foe of Anti-Chain Store legislation. But Mr. Patman was elusive and baffling. Finally, and only after extensive hectoring did the Texas statesman admit that his income from this specialty did not exceed "more than $5,000 in any one year."

If a congressman can grab the banner in five or six different legislative parades every session, which shouldn't be a heavy job considering the great variety of legislation, he might thus add $25,000 to $30,000 a year to his salary, meanwhile pooh-poohing the notion that these fat and pretty checks had the slightest, even the softest, influence upon his attitude. His decision, of course, would always be purely patriotic. The additional income would be just one of the annoying things with which prominent men are pestered.

The statement of Congressman Allen of Illinois directly into the teeth of the gentleman from Texas nearly rocked that congressional cyclone off his feet. Said Mr. Allen:

"I am addressing myself to the principle of whether it is ethical for a member of congress to introduce and sponsor legislation, and while so doing to receive financial remuneration."

That was putting the matter fairly though forcibly. And so long as the majority in Congress doubt the morality of a man making money as has Mr. Patman there will always be safety in the present and hope in the future.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S RETICENCE

Mrs. Dorothy Payne Todd has been described as a widow of great social charm—a plump beauty. Her in 1794 the wizened James Madison married. Henry Adams described him as "a small man, somewhat precise in manner, pleasant, fond of conversation, with a certain mixture of earnest dignity and address." His wife is known to us as Dolly.

Dolly's sometime house—the White House—was burned. The gentleman who burned it was a British Admiral named Cockburn, who had reduced Martinique a short time before, and thereafter, in 1815, was in command of H. M. S. Bellerophon when she transported Napoleon to Helena.

Plump Mrs. Madison could doubtless have made a great success had she chosen to go on the Federal Chataqua circuit. She is supposed to have fled with state papers and even a canvas of Martha Washington, cut from its frame, in the face of British arson. Of the ladies of the White House, Mrs. Madison was a vigorous, outstanding person in her own right, and in these respects her successor is Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt, according to some recent polls, is more popular than her husband. With an august aspiration, she murmurs the following:

"I'm so tired of programs of study I don't know what to do. When I was young I was always sitting at somebody's house listening to somebody talk about what somebody else did. I rebelled."

Therefore, Mrs. Roosevelt is reticent. But somehow one wishes that she would deliver a lecture herself sometimes, and what fun it would be if she should write a newspaper column!

HANDS-OFF POLICY

No criticism of any real consequence will be directed at the State Department for vigorously asserting the case for the Open Door in China. It is true, as Washington states in effect, that Japan has no right to trample on international law, trade agreements and recognized methods of procedure.

But it is to be hoped that provocative action of the type urged by Senator Pittman in demanding that the United States "ostracize" Japan will be scrupulously avoided. The American people want peace; they are not looking for trouble.

Hands off Europe and hands off the Orient should be the gist of American foreign policy in these days when dictators and imperialists are strutting around with chips on their shoulders.

BOILED DINNER

Let's plan a plain boiled dinner!
There was a homely charm
When Grandma used to cook one
Down on the friendly farm.

In the stone cellar, carrots,
"Beggies" and onions stood
Close to the meaty "taters" ...
Cabbages crisp and good

From our own fields were waiting
And there were panspans, too!
All the familiar victuals—
Needed to make a stew!

First we must get for Grandma
Chips for the fire is low,
And from the woodyard carry
Chunks that the stove may glow.

Then with a red-checked cover
The table we'll decorate,
Put on the German silver,
Warm each old-fashioned plate,

Light the oil lamps, and call them—
Those who have long been gone.
"Hurry up with the milkings!"
Dinner will soon be on!

Let's have a plain boiled dinner,
With the good cheer and charm
Captured in humble living
Down on the friendly farm!

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Going to auctions is some fun, eh, kids? There is a nice old lady who lives in one of the suburbs and she is bugs on auctions. She simply cannot resist a bargain. Some of her friends shake their heads sorrowfully and whisper that she must be daffy—not daffy enough to worry about, but daffy nonetheless.

Ab, the mole in the eye! Alas, the human nature that seethes the fault in the Other Fellow but seethes none in itself!

To wit: The nice old lady came home last summer proudly lugging behind her a posthole digger. She had been to an auction, of course. The posthole digger was a bargain, so she bought it.

How her friends and neighbors snickered! The very idea! A posthole digger! What in the world does she want with a posthole digger? She's crazy!

The nice old lady put the digger in the woodshed. Quite frankly, it held little promise of ever doing her a bit of good. She'd never dug a posthole in her life. She gazed upon it and sighed. It was such a handy gadget—if only she needed some postholes.

That, as we were saying, was last summer. Yesterday I dropped out to see her. I started to spoof her a bit about the digger. She laughed like a child.

"It isn't here any more," she said. "You sold it?" I asked.

"Oh, no," replied the nice old lady. "I still own it, and the funny part is that I really need it because I'm going to put up a new fence in back. But I can't lay my hands on it."

She chuckled.

"You know the neighbors and everybody were whispering around that I was out of my mind when I came home from the auction dragging that digger. But do you know what? Those noisy old rattle-tongues have been borrowing that posthole digger from me ever since I got it! I never saw such a crying need for postholes in all my born days. Everybody in town, seems like, suddenly required postholes. And they said I was crazy."

We both laughed so much we got tears in our eyes, so we went out in the kitchen and drank some cider out of the icebox.

"Auctions are some fun, eh, kids?" And we started laughing all over again.

A new waiter, hastily recruited for a private banquet at the Taft grill, couldn't find enough coffee cups to go around. Undaunted, he served coffee to one guest in a bouillon cup. The guest happened to be one of those fussbudgets who refuse to take things as they come. He called the captain and demanded: "What's the idea of serving my coffee in a two-handled cup?"

The captain, unperturbed: "It is just a bit of extra service, sir. The waiter didn't know whether you were left or right handed."

Not all waiters are as quick. During the Yule season, I attended a bit of a shindig at the Waldorf-Astoria and an accident befell me. Seated at dinner with a number of white-bosomed fellows, dignified no end, I was chatting with my neighbor when without warning I was struck a stunning blow from behind.

"Nice people!" I murmured to myself bitterly. "Slugging me from behind!" Then I discovered that the trouble was that a large Christmas tree, placed behind my chair as part of the decorations, had fallen upon me. I was practically pinned to the table by the evergreen, and no one was taking any immediate action to succor me. In due course, however, I heard the voice of a waiter.

"Can I?" it said politely, "be of any service to you, sir?"

I am strictly a fatalist. I believe what is to be is to be, and that what people are they are; so I replied, through the foliage, sweetly: "I'll take another cup of coffee, please; and I suspect maybe I ought to have a bit of an ambulance also—although, of course, I won't be sure until it occurs to someone to pull this lovely tree off my physique."

It turned out I wasn't hurt much, I hope you don't mind.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Feb. 4, 1914
August Kneppel, unopposed candidate for mayor in yesterday's election, received 1,457 of the 1,588 votes cast. He succeeds the late Mayor Canavan and upon being sworn in was assigned the late mayor's departments under the commission form of government.

Two paintings depicting scenes from the life of St. Francis were unveiled at St. Joseph church the day previous.

D. W. Wharton defeated Dan Steinberg in the billiard tournament at the Elks and took the league lead.

Lawrence college announced that the state basketball tournament would be held here March 26 to 28.

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Jan. 30, 1929
Farmers have just about given up the idea of using automobiles on the county's snow bound roads and are going back to sleighs and cutters, driving across fields when roads were impassable. The county had been snowbound about a week. An abandoned automobile was found under a heavy drift by a county snow removal crew.

Mrs. Howard Nussbicker was elected president of the newly organized St. Martha guild at All Saints church.

Gasoline prices were slashed 2 cents a gallon. High test gas was selling at 20.6 cents under the new price schedule.

The Chicago and Northwestern railroad company had announced that it would postpone closing the shops at Kaukauna, scheduled for that day, until March 1. There was no indication that the shops would be maintained after that date.

Opinions of Others

LA DONNA E MOBILE

The press is accused, with reason, of a tendency not to finish its stories. Yesterday's sensation is dropped as another comes along, and what became of its hero no one ever knows. But fortunately, in the matter of the California kindergarten teacher who went to jail for an hour last fall because she had appeared in court in slacks, we are provided an epitaph which closes the tale on a cheerful note.

It will be remembered that Miss Hulick, the girl in the case, had never owned a dress, which was, primarily, her reason for wearing slacks to court. A higher tribunal upheld her in this reversing the sentence for contempt. Miss Hulick, at this point, became very feminine in spite of her attire, and decided that as long as her right was established to wear what she pleased, she would wear something else. She bought a dress.

And immediately Miss Hulick began to flock around, and what with dinners, dances and the like, hardly an evening goes by that she can call her own. If anything conclusive comes of this, we shall be happy to add a further footnote to that effect, in the meantime reflecting that the perversion of womanhood is something wonderful, and that in spite of slacks, shorts and so forth, the sex is probably here to stay.—The Detroit News

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Informed opinion in Supreme Court circles is that Justice Brandeis never will return to the bench from his present illness but on recovering will retire and make way for a new appointee.

Grover thereabouts, so as to rival the service of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Recently he had one bad day on the bench, his illness at that time causing his colleagues evident alarm. Subsequently illness kept him at home. But he has a tough mind and a well tended body and was soon reported out of bed, able to dismiss part of the nursing staff.

Those reporting on him long have predicted that if even he felt he could not do an adequate portion of the court's work he would retire. He is 82 now, and at 82 illness counts.

Of Religion

Bright sayings of the statesmen: President Roosevelt: "Religion, by teaching man his relationship to God, gives the individual a sense of his own dignity and teaches him to respect himself by respecting his neighbors."

Representative Hook of Michigan, defending Attorney General Frank Murphy from attacks of Michigan Republican members: "I believe it is about time, when we enter into political campaigns and when we discuss the record of men in public office, to do so on the issues, presenting them cleanly to the people, so that they can intelligently pass on the issues and stop these scurrilous, personal attacks and this scurrilous 'red' baiting that has been going on."

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins: "I do not believe it is one of the functions of the Secretary of Commerce to write economic treatises, although I do have my own views. I have spent six years around here with people who write economic treatises and I don't believe any of them know any more about it than I do."

Senator Johnson of California, in opposing confirmation of Hopkins as Secretary of Commerce: "I know perfectly well that I am here on my feet exerting myself for a cause that is already defeated. I don't care a continental damn because I know I am right."

Of Emergency

Irvin Laughlin, Ambassador to Spain 1929-33: "Whatever may come of the present struggle, there never will be a democracy in Spain as we understand it. They have always had a sort of monarchical democracy—every man as good as the king. They will never endure fascism, will never yield to the totalitarian states, which have hurt them as well as helped them."

Button-hole views: President Roosevelt using a long cigarette holder, but not one of the flatter variety. . . . Hans Thomsen, fashionably dressed German charge d'affairs, striding alone down a Washington street at night, stops abruptly at a store window—to look at boys' coats. . . . Wrong Way Douglas Corrigan, in a corner of a Washington store autographing copies of his book on the right (not wrong) page. . . . Vice-President Garner patting a senator on the back, probably the fiftieth pat of the day.

SHIPS THEM AWAY

Gallup, N. M. —(G)—Gallup's No. 1 dog-hater tells rid of pooches by the carload.

That was the only explanation railroad officials could offer for a box car full of mongrels discovered in a freight train at Winslow, Ariz., west of Gallup.

Trainmen at Winslow heard barking and whining in the closed car. A brakeman opened the door and was knocked down by yelping dogs.

Officials said someone in Gallup apparently rounded up about two dozen dogs and locked them in the empty freight car just before it was attached to a westbound train.

FROM THEM THAT HATH NOT SHALL BE TAKEN

Under the CAPITAL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Governor Heil in his short time in office has had enough opportunity to learn two great truths of political economy in office: that everybody is for saving money in governmental operations until it pinches close to home; that every public institution ever created automatically becomes a self-propagating instrument with the result that it is much harder to abolish than it was to establish.

In the first tax-reduction measure of the new administration which has emphasized economy ad infinitum, businessmen appeared to oppose stridently the abolition of the state department of commerce which costs the taxpayers $50,000 a year. As one of them said, "cut out some of the divisions of the department of agriculture and markets," but keep this one.

Governor Heil suggested that the state's educational budget has been getting out of line, and that he will cut it. Almost as if by arrangement, President Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin simultaneously made a public plea for more tax funds.

The governor tells state highway contractors and others whose economic interests dictate more and bigger roads that he will probably be forced to divert highway funds; he is greeted by angry debate and replies.

It all goes to show, as a wise old politician observed recently, that economy on the campaign platform and economy in practice are many poles apart. The politician has no need to appear in Wisconsin who can reduce expenditures to the extent that Mr. Heil repeatedly said he would without political retaliation.

In that connection an interesting angle has thus far gone unnoticed. It is that Governor Heil's own manufacturing enterprise in Milwaukee sells much highway equipment to municipal governments and others for road construction and upkeep which will be reflected, in all likelihood, in a diminution in the profits of Heil as president of the Heil company.

QUERY CURIOS

Those high public officers who keep their faith in the Jeffersonian idea, the intelligence of the mass mind, sometimes do so against heavy odds, as some of the strange requests which governmental leaders frequently receive should show.

William F. Ashe, director of the state department of commerce, relates that he gets letters asking him to repeal the social security act, to alter labor relations act, and other enactments of the legislature and congress.

The other day an elderly couple called on the governor, who has been widely advertised as a wealthy man and proud of it, to ask for money with which to buy a farm.

But perhaps the most ironic example of such letters to come to light in the capitol in a long time was the one delivered to Phil La Follette just before the end of his term as governor last December. A vehement correspondent in a letter many pages long assured the governor that the cause of all the world's, and of Wisconsin's, troubles is the Jewish race.

LaFollette handed the letter to a Jewish secretary for reply.

A. I. has been introduced in congress by Senator Truman (D-Mo.) to prevent automobile drivers from crossing state lines unless they have a driver's license approved by the federal government.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THAT PAINFUL SHOULDER

Various names are given to lame shoulder. Subtle bursitis, subacromial bursitis, calcification of the supraspinatus tendon, periarthritis, sprain, strain and eke eke rheumatism. If pain is felt down the arm, wincing is likely to assume it is neuritis.

In perhaps one-third of the cases the origin of the trouble is a definite injury of the shoulder. In another third the symptoms develop gradually, without apparent cause in the remaining third patients report that the lameness began with some over use of the arm or some unaccustomed effort, such as "washing windows," "throwing a snowball," "painting the ceiling," "spading the garden," "polishing the car."

The pain in or about the shoulder is at first sharp and stabbing with certain limited movements, and even when the patient tries to rest at night it may be so painful that a shot of morphine or something is pretty darn welcome relief. I'm telling the world. Pain continues more or less constantly for days. With the pain there is increasing stiffness or limitation of motion in the shoulder, because movement induces pain.

If not properly treated at this acute stage the trouble is likely to drift into a chronic disability of the shoulder which cripples the victim more or less.

Röntgenograms reveal calcium deposits in the bursa or in the supraspinatus tendon in about one-third of all cases after two or three weeks. The presence of such calcification seems to have no particular relation to the symptoms or to the treatment. The calcified area may show in the X-ray picture long after the patient has recovered; or it may disappear long before the shoulder disability has been cured.

Best treatment appears to be complete rest of the shoulder, not merely in splint or sling, but in apparatus to hold the arm abducted and externally rotated, and with a moderate pull maintained on the arm. This must be continued for several days. In this stage cold applications or ice bags on the shoulder give more relief than heat.

After perhaps four or five days of this the arms must be passively moved by the doctor, and now is the time when diathermy treatment is of great value. Daily the diathermy should be applied, for perhaps half an hour, followed by moderate manipulation of the arm by the doctor. This manipulation is bound to hurt a bit, but better a little discomfort now than a stiff and useless shoulder for life. Day by day the extent of movement (abduction and rotation) is increased, until in a month or more the shoulder is nearly as mobile as the well shoulder. Meanwhile the patient carries on regular exercises daily, as instructed.

In neglected cases it may be necessary to put the patient under anesthesia and carefully free adhesions before the physical therapy is instituted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What No Bread For Baby?

My baby seems perfect, health, happy, always smiling and contented. I have followed the doctor's instructions as to diet and other things. The baby gets no bread. Mother-in-law is upset about this and says it's a wonder the baby can even stand without bread, the staff of life. . . . (Mrs. E. O.)

Answer—A mother-in-law just can't be happy unless you are wise to be guided by the instructions of your doctor. When bread was called "staff of life" it was made of wheat from which nothing was removed.

High School Team To Meet Shawano Large Following to Accompany Squad for Conference Tilt

New London—New London High school's basketball floor will be deserted again Friday night when the Red and White cagers travel to Shawano with the traditional fighting spirit usually exhibited in such tilts. Early student reservations for a trip in the school bus indicate a large following will support the team on the Indians' floor.

Shawano hasn't lost a league contest in eight starts this season and Billy Reed, the brilliant Indian forward, has surpassed his conference scoring record of last year. The Stacymen remain in the balance with an even split on eight games.

Losing a tough one to Neenah last Friday by two points, 18 to 20 in a second-half battle, the Bulldogs' record still gives them a total of 150 points scored in conference games over 164 for opponents. They are weak on field goals, 63 to 64, but excel on free shots, 62 to 26. They have been chalked for 62 fouls to their opponents' 85.

Coach Stacy is putting the squad through a general brushing up this week but no special scrimmages or exhibition games are planned. The Bees will accompany the varsity squad to play the preliminary.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a much-smum that collects on plates and bridges. This smum is almost invisible—but it can make your breath so bad that friends shudder. It can breed decay-bacteria that infect your other teeth, actually hurt your health and spoil your pleasure.

Ordinary brushing often can't get this smum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges with-out brushing. It gets every bit of smum, tarnish, stain and odor —dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new. Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities. Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can cost only 30¢ at any drug store.

POLIDENT
CLEANS, PURIFIES, LIFES MOUTH
Do this daily: Add a little Polident to water in a glass. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse and it's ready to wear!

South Should Have Offered No Trump Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

There were very few questions in the recent examination that involved psychological bidding, and in none of them was the examiner asked to make a "phony" or psychic bid. The conditions of vulnerability, however, made certain "readings" possible, not only in the case of selecting the correct answer, but also when it came to gauging which, if any, of the previous calls around the table had been dishonest. Let us review Question 54.

Only North-South vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

West North East South
1 spade Double Redouble

You are South, and hold:

♠ A Q ♥ Q S ♦ 10 4 3 2 ♣ J 10 5 4

What call do you make?

The official answer was that South should bid two no trump, and I pointed out that somebody at the table as certainly "lying." I fully agree with those correspondents who wrote that "South could not possibly hold all the strength shown in view of the one spade bid by West, the double by North, and the redouble by East." The point was, however, that South should have had the vision and courage to realize that there was much greater chance that East had made a "phony" redouble, when not vulnerable, than that North had made such a take-out double when vulnerable. It was all very well for certain contestants to protest that in order to answer such questions correctly they would have to know their partner and opponents, but I do not feel that their point was well taken. Every one has had the experience of sitting in at a strange game, with a strange partner, against unknown opponents. He has no opportunity to acquaint himself with all their bidding habits, hence must let the known conditions speak for themselves and rule his own actions. In this case, the vulnerability alone was sufficient to decide the issue as to "who was lying."

THE BIDDING:

East South West North

1 club Pass 1 diamond 1 heart

Double 1 spade Pass Pass

2 clubs 2 spades Pass Pass

3 clubs 3 spades Double Pass

South's bidding in this sequence should be studied as a model of correct bidding.

It will be noted that South, holding an eight spade suit to the A-K, and with excellent distribution outside, meekly passed over East's one club. South's idea, of course, was to enter the bidding later and perhaps coax a double without having to go too far for it. As it happened, South's plan was given a tremendous lift by the immediate course of bidding.

When North put his neck out to bid one heart and was promptly doubled by East (not that I approve the double), South's modest one spade bid made its initial appearance in the apparent role of a rescue bid. Thus, when South later bid two and three spades, West finally was lured into the action that South had hoped for from the start. Undoubtedly West did not will be noted that South, holding an eight spade suit to the A-K, and with excellent distribution outside, meekly passed over East's one club. Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

These fashionable young women took great pains to keep their elaborate coiffures in place.

If you are one to complain about the new up-swept coiffure, you need only glance at these elaborate hair dressings of the early "nineties" to be convinced that you have not begun to experience "hair fussing."

From the archives of one of the leading scalp specialists, The Ogilvie Sisters, I culled these amusing hair-dos which swept fashionable females off their feet about 1890. Curious were the customs of the day when it came to caring for the hair. Crimps, as you see, were very much in vogue. They were created by pressing the hair between two hot irons which were heated over a charcoal stove, and kept from burning the beauty's scalp, a resting gadget was placed under the irons.

More thrifty wench, who could not or would not afford the services of a hair dresser, tried their luck at home. Long hair was curled over ebony sticks (about twenty inches in length) which were heated in the oven. And the smartest of the thrifty belles achieved "crimps" by braiding their hair after moistening it with quince seed lotion, and then pressing the braids on a board with a hot iron! A cloth covered the hair to protect it from scorching and discoloring!

All for Beauty
Patrons of a beauty salon were cautioned not to brush their waves, for fear of ruining them, and in order to keep their costly coiffures unharmed, women slept at night with their heads tightly bound in caps and "stays," and during the day held their heads stiffly. The glide waltz was a necessity of the times — and how could a jitterbug keep her beribboned topknot in place?

The serious scalp conditions which resulted from these foolish customs were treated haphazardly. "Spirits" were applied to the only scalp, and "ointment" to the dry scalps. No brushing, no scalp massage, no neck exercising and muscle relaxing!

Not until 1918 — at the time of the big influenza epidemic, did women begin to listen to the teachings of the more modern authorities on scalp care. Among the very first were the Ogilvie Sisters who preached the need for blood supply to the scalp through exercise, daily massage and brushing of the hair; corrective diet and the banishment of transformations or toupees.

Quite naturally the very elaborate coiffure disappeared. The more modern permanent waves appeared and women took to "bobbing" their heads in order to care for their hair more intelligently.

And even with the current vogue for longer hair, there is no excuse for indifferent care of the scalp. Science has taught us what hair needs to be a "crowning glory" and it is up to women to protect this allure through daily beauty routine.

If your hair is oily, send for my leaflet, "Treatment for the Oily Scalp" and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

And we have seen so many women go down into the gutter and had constructed the charts. One of his guests to whom he had given the tests, finally asked about their authorship, and he called his attention to me.

We are so accustomed to looking at the picture that we seldom notice the frame. This principle is generally a rule of our reactions in life.

Many readers of this column are employing the psychological laws illustrated herein, but have had little or no occasion to pay attention to the mast head above the column.

In fact, many writers address me as "Dr. Frank Crane," and some newspapers list my column under that name in their front page table of contents, although he has been dead for more than ten years.

It doesn't offend me in the least, however, for Dr. Frank Crane was a good man and a good writer. I am glad to be confused with him.

How Children Select Books
Another reason why we pay little attention to the author but much heed to his product, is our childhood experience with books. When a boy visits the library for a volume, he seldom observes the author's name.

Instead, he asks for a book about Indians or cowboys or pirates or Indians. This is a natural human trait that is true of adults, too. For instance, which book title would sell the greater number of volumes: "Facts About Fascism" or "The Truth About Mussolini"? Again, which of this pair would prove more popular?

An "Introduction to Einstein" or "Einstein's Theory Relativity Explained." In the first pair, the Fascism title sold 24,000 copies against 14,000 for Mussolini. In the latter pair, Einstein's Theory brought 42,000 sales against 15,000 for the other title.

People are more interested in a man's products than in the man. Relying on this psychological law, I insist that the syndicate furnish every newspaper a new column daily to illustrate the same principle instead of running my own picture, set-up. The mail input always jumps whenever the daily change in illustration is employed.

Good Wives Grieve Because Husbands Treat Them Badly

BY DOROTHY DIX

One of the chief grievances of domestic wives is that their husbands seem to regard them as merely household gadgets, devised for their comfort and convenience, while so many other wives who spend their time in the beauty parlor instead of the kitchen are treated like Lady Loves by their husbands.

"Look at all we do for our husbands," cry these bewildered and disappointed ones. "We slave for them early and late. We pinch pennies to save their money. We go shabby that they may be well dressed when they go out in the world. We walk the babies at night so they may have their sleep. We nurse them when they are sick and buck them up when they get discouraged. We cook what they like to eat and do everything in our power to make them happy. And what appreciation do we get?"

"None. Our husbands take us for granted and consider all we do for them as no more than their due. It is the Grabem Sisters, who take all and give nothing, whose husbands worship them and wait on them hand and foot. It is the lazy wives whose husbands have to get up and wash their fingers to the bones to pay their bills that men go crazy over. So what's the use in being a good wife when the bad ones get all the love and attention?"

And no one can solve their problem except by saying that somehow it seems a law of Nature that the Marthas of this world shall do its toil and bear its burdens, while the Marys reap all of the rewards and get the bouquets. And there is small comfort in that explanation.

But this curious phenomenon of marriage in which the unworthy mates get all the cakes and ale, while the worthy ones sup on gall and tears, is not confined to wives. Husbands also share the same fate. For all about us we see men who work themselves to death to indulge their wives in luxury, yet who are not even a "thank you" for their labor and sacrifice. We see husbands who are patient and forbearing, who put up with bad housekeeping and ill-temper from their wives, yet who are not even treated with civility by them. Yet they go on apparently loving their wives to the bitter end.

And, on the contrary, we see men forsaking the wives who have given them forty years of devotion and slavery to help them make their fortunes for hard-boiled little gold-diggers. We see men take the love and service and sacrifices of their wives as a matter of course and never give them so much as a word of praise in return, or even a sign that they still retain any vestige of interest in them or affection for them.

And we have seen so many women go down into the gutter and

American Foreign Policy in the Making: The Critical Choice

If the American people understood thoroughly how exceptionally fortunate is their position in the world, there could not, I am convinced, be any serious division of opinion among responsible men about the aims of American policy. All the questions which trouble us, whether it be the fortification of Guam, the extent of the commitments we should make in South America, or the refusal to let Japan buy planes and the encouragement to France to buy planes, or the Neutrality Act, can be made clear only to those who have realized that among the great nations of the earth our position is unique. Our position is unique because no power is capable of attacking us. It is true that American traders have interests in China that we are unable to defend. It is true that the Philippines are a rather disturbing liability. But otherwise the United States is invulnerable. There is no fleet that can threaten any part of this hemisphere, or any important trade route over which vitally necessary imports, like rubber, for example, are carried to the United States. No American city can be bombed; the planes have not yet been built that can cross either ocean; drop bombs, and return home across the ocean. No nation has an air base within striking distance of our own territory, or even of this hemisphere, and no nation would be free to attack us through the air, even if it wanted to, because in both Asia and Europe all the nations are pinned down by their potential enemies.

This gives us a security which is unique. Where other nations may feel that they could beat off an attack if they were challenged, we are able to feel that we cannot even be challenged.

Policy Should Be To Preserve This Security

Does it not follow that the whole object of American foreign policy must be to preserve this unique security? Is there anyone who will dispute that? Is this not the touchstone by which every question of foreign policy and of armaments must be decided? I feel sure that in the last analysis it is the preservation of this invulnerable security that Americans are primarily interested in, and not in the China trade, not in any quixotic desire to unbind the Europeans and the Asians, or in their ideological sympathy, not in their cultural or ancestral memories and certainly not in any imperial ambition of their own. If they could feel the security we now enjoy will last, there would be no need to do anything further about armaments or to re-examine the lines of our foreign policy. And whatever we do in the matter of armaments and of foreign policy will, I believe, have the support of the whole nation if it is clearly and unmistakably done to maintain this situation in which no one can attack us, and no one can intimidate us.

What is the actual situation which we wish to maintain? We have a Navy, a very good Navy, a Navy quite capable of defending our coasts and our vital maritime highways in the Pacific Ocean. That means not only that the Japanese cannot attack Alaska or Hawaii, or Panama or the Pacific Coast, but that they cannot cut off our absolutely essential imports of rubber from the East Indies. This same Navy could easily defend the Atlantic Coast, the Panama Canal, and South America against any conceivable attack from Europe.

But, and this is the crux of our whole problem today, the Navy is not capable of defending all these things in both oceans at the same time. If the fleet had to defend our interests in the Atlantic, it would not be able to defend our interests in the Pacific; and vice versa, if it were protecting the Pacific, it could not defend the Atlantic. Therefore, if ever the time came when there was a combination of powers against us in the two oceans, we should be very insecure indeed.

No Such Combination Is Now in Existence

Such a combination does not now exist. It is true that Japan, Germany and Italy are allies. But whatever they may think of us, their alliance is directed not against us but against Great Britain and France and China and Russia. As long as that is the case, as long as this alliance has such formidable opposition in Europe and Asia, our ancient security, our invulnerable isolation between the two oceans remains and we are very safe.

The only fundamental difference of opinion that exists among Americans, say between men like Senators Taft and Clark on the one hand, the president and Mr. Hull on the other, is whether we may continue to count upon this situation continuing.

The difference is not a matter of emotion, of being hysterical or not being hysterical. It is a matter of a sober calculation of what is going to happen. If the Japanese not only conquer China but make China a vassal and an ally; if the Germans and Italians should overthrow the French army and the British navy, is it not evident that our position in the world would be radically altered? For then the Japanese would be free to set out to conquer not only the Philippines but the East Indies, the Germans and Italians would be able to obtain naval and air bases on the Atlantic ocean, in Spain, in the Portuguese islands, in the Danish islands, in the African colonies. This has not yet happened. The Japanese are still occupied in China; the French army and the British navy are still able to hold Germany in the center of Europe and Italy in the interior of the Mediterranean sea. As long as this continues, we still have our invulnerable isolation. There is no combination of powers in the two oceans that can threaten us.

We have two choices, and the critical problem of our foreign policy is to decide which is the better choice. The one is to wait and see, and then if the Japanese succeed in Asia and the Germans and Italians overwhelm the British and French in Europe, to take what ever measures we then think necessary to build a navy, which can defend our interest in both oceans at once. This, so far as I understand it, is the policy of a man like Senator Clark.

It is a possible policy. It may be that the dangers which so many fear will not develop, that Hitler will not try to become the master of Europe, that he will not trouble us in this hemisphere if he does, or that the British and French will be able to hold him safely within bounds. It may be that one ought not to try to look ahead and prepare for possible dangers that may never become actual ones. But granting all that, for the sake of the argument, it cannot be denied, I think, that if the worst happened in Europe and in Asia, we should have to build a much greater navy, that is to say a two-ocean navy.

Prevention Policy Involves Some Risks

The other course is to take measures to forestall the development of a situation that would really threaten us. That is why the Navy wants to fortify Guam. It is the cheapest way of enabling the fleet to protect American vital interests in the Pacific without constructing many more warships. That is why the President has helped France to buy airplanes. If France has enough airplanes, the chances of her being destroyed and conquered are very small. That is why he would like to return to the old rules of neutrality. If it were clear now that the British and French could get arms here, the chances of war in Europe would be materially reduced. For Britain and France will not be attacked unless it appears that they are sure to be defeated.

There are risks in this policy. There are the risks of entanglement. There are the risks of reprisal. The question is whether the risks of trying to make war less likely are as grave as would be the consequences of a war in which the British Navy and the French Army might be defeated, and could no longer keep Germany and Italy out of the Atlantic Ocean.

In weighing the two policies, let us remember this cardinal consideration. It will be better to adopt either one and follow it out resolutely, than to hesitate and to quarrel among ourselves. If we want to wait and see, we must be prepared to arm ourselves on a standard of naval defense, not in one ocean as now, but in the two oceans simultaneously. If we want to avoid that, and yet to preserve the security we now enjoy, then we should let the British and French obtain arms in this country.

It is a hard choice. But this is a hard time in the affairs of mankind. Either choice is possible. Both involve risks. But not to make the choice clearly and promptly and unanimously is much more dangerous than either policy in itself. For if we do a little of the one and a little of the other, we shall incur all the dangers and get none of the advantages.

We shall become in the midst of one of the great crises of history a divided people incapable of maintaining our vital interests. So I say, let us realize what is the vital interest on which the nation is at bottom really agreed, let us choose now how we mean to maintain it, and having chosen our line, let us stick to that line resolutely and loyally.

700 Persons Hear Burruss Talk at Safety Program

Orator Quotes 'Shakespeare, Says Safety 'Must Be Sold'

Menasha—William B. Burruss, salesman, teacher, writer and orator who might add Shakespearean actor to his list of qualifications, Tuesday night proposed the immortal dramatist as the greatest salesman of all time at the safety meeting which was attended by more than 700 persons in the Menasha high school auditorium.

The meeting was the second in the series of four being sponsored by the schools of vocational and adult education of Neenah and Menasha in cooperation with local industry. Walter E. Strong of the Marathon Paper mills acted as chairman. The Menasha High school band played a concert under the direction of L. E. Kraft and Franklyn LeFevre led the community singing.

"Safety must be sold," the speaker declared and then quoted excerpts from Shakespeare's works with gestures to demonstrate what a salesman the English bard was. "I learned long ago never to try to make anyone do anything," Burruss said. "Instead I try to make them want to do something by appealing to the pleasure, profit or some other motive."

Quoting extensively from the play, "Julius Caesar," Burruss translated the words into modern idiom and also interspersed explanations of the principles of selling which the words demonstrated. "Caesar was a success as a group of men plotted to get rid of him. Business men often are like that. If a newcomer is successful, they often say he's crooked—because if he isn't, then the other business men must be incompetent."

Quoted 'Caesar'

"Well, Caesar was popular so the conspirators had to find someone to sell to the public and picked Brutus, a well-known successful Roman citizen. Some people think that the Americans invented the personal interview and follow-up letter but there it is in Shakespeare. The plotters went to call on Brutus and then at night tossed notes, signed by 'John Public,' over the fence to urge Brutus. They were successful in making him want to do what they wanted."

"There was one man who saw Caesar killed and who didn't stay. He remembered something. His wife wanted him to do it at home and went to tend to it. Then he took out the first life insurance policy with a disability benefit. He got Brutus to promise that they wouldn't hurt him. Mark Anthony got permission to speak at the funeral. Brutus was rather egotistical. He didn't care who followed his speech."

Brutus had to make the crowd like the idea that they had killed Caesar and he was a pretty good salesman. He appealed to them. "Would you rather a living Caesar and that you all die in slavery or a dead Caesar and you all living in freedom?" and there was no answering that and he asked if there was anyone so base as to not love his country and no one spoke up so Brutus concluded that he had offended no one but he forgot to get the order signed.

A Job Selling
"Then Mark Anthony had a job of selling. He had to get attention, create interest by linking the public to the problem, create desire by associating the problem with such motives as pride, affection, curiosity, profit or fear and finally to clinch the sale. The public wasn't interested in hearing Mark. There had been a lot of talking."

"You know, Caesar was the original kidnaper. He brought back many captives and all the money from their ransom went into the Roman treasury. When Mark said in effect, 'When Caesar lived, he paid all of the taxes. Who's going to pay them now?' he got the attention of the crowd."

"He gave the crowd a chance to respond when he told them that Caesar had thrice denied the crown and asked if that was ambition. He wetted their curiosity by referring to Caesar's will and showing it to them. When the crowd wanted to hear the will read, Mark said, 'No, you've got me. But he did drop the hint that the people were Caesar's heirs so the crowd wanted to know how much?'"

Lacked Sincerity
"When the crowd started after the conspirators Mark called them back, referring to them as honorable men who would give reasons for their actions. That was dirty selling because the conspirators didn't have a chance and anything they said would only go against them. The crowd started once more but Mark called them back by reading the will which made the people heirs of Caesar. The people then chased the conspirators out and raised an army for success. He might have been a great speaker but he lacked one thing—sincerity."

In the safety field, Mr. Burruss pointed out that it is an ever-present problem. "The largest number of accidents occur in the home and nothing is done about it. He declared that 21,000 accidents occurred in Wisconsin in one year of which over 70 per cent were preventable."

"Relax," was suggested as a safety keyword by the speaker who declared that workers must be in control and relaxed while working in order to prevent accidents. "Getting mad results in the most trouble."

Building Value in Neenah Increases $9,400 Last Month

Inspector Issues 28 Permits During January

Neenah—An increase amounting to $9,400 in building valuation during January over the same month last year was reported today by John Blenker, assistant city building inspector.

Last month the value of permits for construction in Neenah amounted to $9,450, while for the same month in 1938 it was only $50. There were six permits issued last month while there was one issued during the same period a year ago.

There was a decrease amounting to $14,350 last month as compared to December, when the value was $23,800. There were only eight permits issued that month but six of them were for new homes.

There was one new home and two garages for which permits were granted last month. Besides, there were two permits for remodeling, one each for a service station, a temporary building, and moving, while there were 14 electrical permits, five plumbing and two heating. The total valuation amounted to $11,580, and the fees amounted to $45.85.

The permits issued were as follows: Standard Oil Company, S. Commercial street, service station, $3,000; D. F. Jorgensen, 202 Church street, garage, $150; W. J. Durham Lumber company, Stevens street, home and garage, $5,000; Bergstrom Paper company, W. Police Report 15 January Arrests

Neenah—Arrests by Menasha police in January showed a decrease in comparison with January, 1938, according to the monthly report submitted today by Police Chief Alex Slomski to the fire and police commission. During January of this year there were only 15 arrests while a year ago there were 21.

Speeding and drunken driving topped the list of offenses with three convictions each. Two convictions were obtained when drivers went through stop and go lights. There were seven other causes of arrest with one conviction each. They included failure to stop for an arterial, disorderly conduct, hit and run driving, grand larceny, altering and forging a receipt, common drunk, and disregarding a police officer's signal.

During the month the squad car traveled 4,403 miles. Nine operators' tests were given by the traffic officer during the month. Property valued at $422.09 was recovered and returned to the owners. The department took care of 63 complaints during the month. Merchants doors were found open on five occasions. Three transients were housed.

Collection of taxes is about $2,000 behind last year. The first half of the taxes as well as the special assessments and personal property taxes are due Feb. 28.

Compares Japan's Invasion of China With Hitler's Expansions

Neenah—Comparing Japan's invasion of China with that of Hitler's expansion program, Professor Howard J. McMurray of the University of Wisconsin extension division traced in the fourth of a series of six lectures on today's world affairs at the Kimberly school last night the cause of the Oriental war to Perry's opening of Japan for trade to the western nations.

The professor said, "Until Perry sailed the United States navy into a Japanese harbor, unopposed, a couple of broadsides in the direction of the land, forcing the Japanese to come out and sign an unfair trade treaty, Japan was a static country which wanted no traffic with the rest of the world."

All other western nations followed Perry's example and forced Japan to sign unfair trade agreements. Japan realized it couldn't resist and did an about face. It adopted western technology but refused our ideals. Warlords were thrown out and Japanese students were sent west for education. A semi-liberal government, patterned after Bismarck's German government was set up. Japan started to build a navy and startled the world with its rapid industrial progress.

Grew in Strength
By the time the unequal treaties came up for renewal in 1899, Japan was strong enough to refuse to sign. It had become a nation in its own right.

The professor reasoned, "With its advancement in technology, Japan found itself a poor nation, needing not only more territory but control of raw materials and markets." The Japanese started with fighting China and taking Korea and Formosa. Russia interfered in 1904 and Japan was beaten in the 9-month war. Japan at that time would have dismembered China but for President Theodore Roosevelt and the Portsmouth treaty. When the western nations got into the World War, Japan started making demands on China, but afterwards Japan was pressured by the western nations to nullify its gains. The 4-power and 9-power treaties resulted, but when the depression gripped the western nations, Japan lost little time in violating them, taking Manchuria, and openly invading in the present undeclared war.

Big Job in China
Professor McMurray pointed out that Japan is in the stage of development similar to that of England's 200 years ago and the other countries 100 years ago, and in order to round out an economic empire, Japan will have to control all of Asia, including India, which will mean controlling 700 million people. Because no one, not even the Chinese themselves, has been able to organize China, the professor said he doubted whether the Japanese could do it. It would be an enormous job, he added.

The lecturer said he wouldn't make a prediction on the outcome of the Oriental struggle, but regardless of which nation won, the victor would drive out western interest, especially Japan. The Chinese, he pointed out, are more friendly toward America than Japan because of our missionaries and because America has disposed less than other nations. Following the boxer rebellion, the indemnity paid America by China was put into a fund to educate Chinese students in American universities.

McMurray also sketched briefly the history of China from 1642, describing the unequal trade treaties, the revolt in 1911, the development of the machine age, and the influence and break with Russia.

Women's Tuesday Club Hears Talk on Work of Thomas Mann

Neenah—Declaring that Thomas Mann's volumes "Joseph in Egypt" are in answer to German ideology though in no sense political; concerning itself with the reversion in whole thought to the primitive, Miss Dorothy Bethurum, professor of English at Lawrence College, told members of the Women's Tuesday club Tuesday afternoon in their club room in Neenah Public library that in her opinion, perhaps the reversion to the primitive is an indication that civilization has proved too difficult for man, that he is not equal to the products of his own ingenuity.

Miss Bethurum pointed out that while such a belief was her own explanation, Mann, through his writing, presents some of the dangers that lead to such reversion, placing attention and emphasis on those things which threaten a life of restraint, of reason; that complicate the whole problem of control.

Briefly touching on humanism, that theory of all art and life based by some to be a seeking normal satisfactions controlled so as to approximate an ideal which the experiences of the race have found to be productive of lasting happiness, the speaker discussed Mann's humanism and how it is reflected in his works.

Miss Bethurum discussed the realistic and creditable treatment of the ancient story of Joseph, the style and technique of the author throughout his writings, the folk lore, the origin of ideas which has conditioned modern life, the types and the characters in the story. "Joseph," she explained, "is a realistic study of a character, beset by dangers from within but a character who played with danger to test his own stability."

Rockets to Meet Black Phantoms in League Battle

Neenah Faces Improved West DePere Quintet Friday

Neenah—Neenah faces an improved West DePere quintet in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference game Friday evening at West DePere.

The Rockets, on the other hand, have had to apply pressure in their recent conflicts, especially in the nip and tuck clash with New London here last Friday. Although Coach Ole Jorgensen's quintet scored a 20 to 18 victory in the final seconds, the game was too close for comfort.

Kaukauna was forced to overcome the Black Phantom's 9-point lead in the final quarter of a game last Friday to count a 30 to 25 win over West DePere.

But because of the Rockets' decisive 33 to 14 victory over the Black Phantoms in the first game here Dec. 12, Neenah will be favored to cop from the West DePere aggregation. The Rockets, however, will have to stop the high scoring Van Sistine, one of whom plays forward and the other center. They are the mainstays of the Black Phantoms' offense.

Guard Leading
Coach Jorgensen also has some high scoring players. Harlan Hesselman, guard, presently being the leader with 82 points to his credit. Captain Dan Schmidt, center, is second on the list with 76 points, while Leo Peterson, forward, has 46.

The Rockets' performance last week was seriously affected by the absence of Warren Kettering, veteran guard. Kettering is a good point getter as well as a defensive leader. He received an injured elbow last week in practice.

Without Kettering, the Neenah mentor shifted Peterson to guard and assigned Warren's young brother, Buxton, to a forward job. Hackstock will cover his usual forward assignment, and Schmidt will be at center with Hesselman at guard.

Committee Maps Measure to End Exempt Salaries

House Group Outlining Proposal for Reciprocal Taxation

Washington—(U)—The house ways and means committee is fashioning a tax sieve through which to sift a three billion dollar pay roll.

It is preparing legislation, at President Roosevelt's suggestion, for reciprocal taxation of salaries paid federal, state, municipal, and county employees.

Yet, out of the billions given every year to several million workers in those groups, the federal government expects to collect only about $16,000,000 of taxes annually.

The reason is that by far the largest group of these state and local employees receive salaries too low to require income tax payments. The exemptions more than cover the wages.

Into this group fall most of the policemen and firemen, and many thousands school teachers, most of the employees in rural counties, the average clerk in city and state offices, and quite a few of those with more exalted titles.

Pay Of Governors In some states even the governor would pay only a small federal tax on his salary. Average pay for a governor is $9,837 a year, but 33 governors get less.

There is some slight variance in the figures on how many persons get pay of one kind or another from the 182,000 different state and local governmental units that dot the land—all of them with taxing power of their own. The treasury sets the figure, in round numbers, at 2,600,000.

Since this source of revenue has been closed by a sort of "you-don't-tax-me-and-I-won't-tax-you" attitude, which recent court decisions have cleared away, the levying of an income tax on these salaries by the federal government would open the way for the states to require federal employees to pay state income taxes.

They are somewhat handicapped, however, by the fact that about a seventh of the federal workers live in Washington and are subject only to the taxes of the District of Columbia.

Emergency Board Allots $185,000 For State Welfare

Madison—(U)—The emergency board last night allotted $185,000 to the state welfare department to finance relief needs and administration costs for February.

A delegation of county officials was scheduled to confer today with Governor Heil to discuss the relief problem.

The board objected to the department's policy of spending $58,000 for overhead costs, of which $36,000 goes for certifying relief and WPA clients, and $22,000 for general administration.

The board said this was out-of-line with the $127,000 actually distributed to the counties.

Complete figures showing a breakdown of overhead costs must precede the department's request for March funds, the board warned.

Hollywood—Nelson Eddy's marriage is going to be the final test of Hollywood's time-honored belief that off-screen matrimony and on-screen romance can't be mixed without loss of popularity to the player. I doubt if any other star, since the hey-day of Rudolph Valentino, has prospered so much of the somewhat psychopathic adoration of love-lis ladies in his audiences. Women have groveled at Eddy's feet when he went on concert tours and supplied newspapers with headlines by following him from town to town. Women have formed the solid phalanx around which his army of fans have always rallied. In my opinion, no other star has ever risked more by marriage.

And the circumstances of Nelson's marriage don't tend to soothe the disillusionment of the ladies who have pictured him as their dream ideal. There was no whirlwind courtship, no fairy-tale plot, no appeal to the imaginative. Nelson, who's as steady, sensible and un-Lochinvarish in real life as the president of your local bank, chose to marry a very charming, forty-year-old divorcee. They had been excellent friends for several years. All in all, it presented the unexciting features of any middle-aged, upper class wedding.

I'm wondering how many girls who have had Nelson's photograph ensnared in their dresser tops, have already replaced him with—Tyronne Power. If their number isn't legion, then the wisecracks of Hollywood who wrote that ban against screen heroes trekking to the altar, were completely daffy. And wisecracks seldom are that wrong.

Idol chatter: You'll have to admit that Dorothy Lamour shows plenty of backbone in her choice of evening gowns. Ode to chivalry: Don Ameche's thoughtful habit of chewing a fresh stick of gum before each kissing scene. I always have that annoying surely-I-know-him-but-what's-his-name feeling when I meet Walter Brennan—he's that unlike his on-screen self. Hope Mary Livingstone made allowance for to-morrow's publicity headline: "Twenty-Film Star Selected For Benny Film." Jeannette MacDonald's smile is a thing of beauty, but it sometimes gives me the creeps—it's exactly like the smile of the late Thelma Todd.

Come to think about it, Edward Everett Horton comes as close to living the Golden Rule as any man I know. Suggestion to Twentieth Century-Fox: Why not give audiences a glimpse of Arleen Whelan in a swim suit—many a gal has travelled to stardom on less graceful curves than those? Look up the word "doubt" in your nearest Webster's, and you'll have a perfect description of the off-screen George Brent. A lot of those carpers who said opera singers were through in pictures must be having their bad moments trying to account for the success of Meliza Korjus.

Wonder if Carole Lombard wouldn't be just as glamorous—and a lot less terrifying—with out those inch-long finger nails? Incongruities: David Niven's British accent and the enthusiasm with which he chews gum. Marriage has done more to de-Anglicize Ronald Colman than fifteen years' residence in America—the man's actually becoming sociable. Today's observation: when Hollywoodites call anyone "sophisticated" they usually mean that he has perfect manners and questionable morals.

Seems to me that something slipped when movie fans in fifty towns were given a chance the other day to elect a "King" and a "Queen" of the movies. They promptly decorated Tyronne Power with a crown by a landslide vote—and 59,608 fans overlooked the other ladies of Cinema City while naming Jeannette MacDonald queen. The whole thing makes me very suspicious of that list of 1939's "Ten - Greatest Box-Office Stars," recently compiled by the exhibitors. On that list the new "King" was tenth—and the "Queen" didn't rate at all.

It was a scene for "I Take This Woman." Hedy Lamour was to leap to her death and a half-dozen astounded publicity men assured me that she had refused a double-she was going to do the stunt herself. I went on the set to share the thrill. Three cameras—an army of anxious, tense spectators—and, poised above the crowd, Hedy Lamour—completely scornful of the danger. After an hour of preparation, commendation and consultation, the great moment arrived. Hedy jumped, fell . . . and everyone rushed to see that she was safe. She was. It was just eight feet from the take-off to the landing place—a yard-thick feather bed.

Speaking of Hedy Lamour reminds me that she's one of a four—me which is being seen in all the spots these days. She goes with Bruce Cabot; Adrienne Ames clings to the arm of Reginald Gardiner. And here's the Hollywood touch. Gardiner used to be engaged to Hedy; Bruce was once the husband of Adrienne Ames. (Copyright, 1939)

Lawrence A Cappella Choir Is Rehearsing for Season's Premiere at Chapel Feb. 16

HAILED by Metropolitan critics as a choral organization with out peers, the Lawrence college a cappella choir, directed by Carl J. Waterman, will make its initial concert appearance for this season Thursday evening, Feb. 16, at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

In addition to its road tour of Milwaukee and Chicago, the choir hopes to include in its itinerary this year a number of smaller Wisconsin cities. A special effort therefore is being made to increase the attendance at the choir's local concert this year so that proceeds will be sufficient to finance the tour. In past years when the choir made its season's premiere in Appleton the attendance by townspeople was far below the chapel's capacity.

One of the best musical organizations in the country, its tour of the state would mean favorable publicity for both the city and the college.

Lauded By Critics
Eugene Stinson, music critic of the Chicago Daily News, wrote of the Lawrence choir's 1938 Goodman theatre concert: "Their singing is warm, vital, and expressive. The wonderful thing that Mr. Waterman has done, however, is the thing that places his choir ahead of any other Chicago group, is to develop that tone quality and blend it with a consummate and unequalled cunning." His enthusiasm was matched by that of Herman Devries, critic for the Chicago American, who said, "Last night, in the same theater, these 70 collegiates, made a new bid for favor and succeeded in rousing the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. Director Waterman has guided these fine voices for many years, and through annually the personnel changes, the 1938 aggregation can well be classed among the great 'university choirs'."

In planning this season's program, Dean Waterman has included a variety of material with distinct appeal for the laymen as well as the professional musician. Composition by eminent contemporaries, such as Randall Thompson and Carl Donald, have been set beside those of Lotti and Bach with the consummate skill of an experienced program builder. Accompanied choruses from Borodin's "Prince Igor," Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah" and the ever popular "Gondoliers" by Gilbert and Sullivan are being planned as a final, brilliant group.

This year's program is to be presented as a number of the Community Artist Series. Single tickets are on sale at Bellinger's Drug store.

Tax Limits Would Mean Heavy Loss, Alliance Reports

Would Need Replacement Revenue Up to $68,000,000

Madison—Legal limitations on property tax rates in Wisconsin towns, cities, and villages would, if enacted, require between $11,000,000 and $68,000,000 of replacement revenue, depending upon the rate limitation, according to an analysis of property assessments, tax levies and tax rates in Wisconsin just completed by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

"If a 1 per cent over-all property tax rate limitation to include debt service were imposed, the loss of revenue to Wisconsin municipalities would amount to $67,000,000," the alliance report read, "while under a 3 per cent limit, the tax reduction would be $10,900,000. Amounts of revenue lost by limitation between 1 per cent and 3 per cent grow larger as the limitation rate is set lower."

A tax rate limitation of 1 per cent would affect 98 1/2 per cent of the towns, cities and villages in Wisconsin, whereas a limit of 3 per cent would affect only 26 per cent of the municipalities, the report showed. Under a 1 per cent limit, property taxes would be reduced by 63.7 per cent throughout the state.

"A 3 per cent limit," the bulletin pointed out, "would reduce property tax levies in Wisconsin by 10 per cent, but the reduction in municipalities affected by the limit would amount to about 17 per cent."

Present Wisconsin laws establish limitations on levies of counties, towns, cities and villages both in the form of limitations and the amount that may be spent for any one function such as roads or parks, and limitations on the total amount of the levy.

"In actual practice, these limitations are not rigidly enforced," the report said, "and vary widely from municipality to municipality, and from year to year, depending upon the functions financed by the property tax."

Former Senator Seeks Supreme Court Post

Milwaukee—(P)—Former State Senator William H. Markham of Horicon announced here Monday he would be candidate for the supreme court in the April 4 election. Markham will run in opposition to Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry.

Announcing his candidacy, he declared: "Judicial decisions today indicate a leaning toward the rule of the jungle, where might makes right, and the rights of man under such rule are disregarded. The issue is property rights versus human rights. I cannot bargain with human rights, for I cannot bargain with my conscience."

Markham came to Wisconsin in 1913 from St. Charles, Minn., where he had been municipal judge. He was a state senator for two terms, ending in 1931.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If February 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m.; from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m.; from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m., and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

You may find yourself attending to a variety of things this day. In many ways you should find yourself a very lucky person. You might be prepared to take jokes good-naturedly, for a good deal of witicism may be indulged in. Do not ridicule anyone's pet aversion this day, if you prefer to avoid an argument. You may find that with the average person, who is able to grant some favor, it will be a case of "you scratch my back and I will scratch yours". You are apt to have pleasant recollections as the result of being reminded of some friend or friend forgotten. You might require a great deal of will power to finish what you have started this day, but your results should be worth your effort. Married and engaged couples and those who are in love, must not indulge in vanity or fickleness this day, if trouble is to be avoided.

If a woman and February 2 is your birthday, radical ideas must be combatted, for if you ever entertain them they may involve you in many complications. Be careful that your love for excitement does not cause you to cast discretion to the four winds. To be happy be conservative in your thoughts and actions. The quicker you realize that you cannot work out other people's salvation for them, the better off you may be. Educational, political, missionary, social welfare or commercial work are among the best activities in which you might engage. There are many indications that your married life will be filled with pleasant surprises and much happiness.

The child born on February 2, often is a puzzle to its parents and friends, as new and admirable traits of character are likely to be revealed with the passing of time. Latent talents are frequently brought to light in a startling way at the most opportune time. Generally, the careers of children born on this date are fascinating to follow.

If a man and February 2 is your natal day, you cannot afford to be temperamental if you wish to be successful. Dependability is the key-stone of the structure of the person, and it is the person who is able to afford to be temperamental if you wish to be successful. Dependability is the key-stone of the structure of the person, and it is the person who is able to afford to be temperamental if you wish to be successful.

Successful People Born on February 2:

Fritz Kreisler, violinist; Knute Nelson, lawyer and politician; John C. Dalton, physiologist; George Loring Brown, landscape painter; Delia S. Bacon, author; George Engelmann, physician and botanist.

More Than 2,000 Badger Young People Get Educational Aid

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Over two thousand college and graduate students in 1938-39 are receiving aid for the 1938-39 school year according to preliminary figures announced by the National Youth Administration.

The yearly allotment for the state was $326,160, or $36,240 monthly, which goes to 2,416 students in 79 institutions. Lawrence college has a quota of 68 students who receive $1,020 monthly or $9,180 yearly allotments. The Outagamie Rural Normal School and the Menasha Extension Center of the University of Wisconsin, have quotas of 5 and 2 students respectively, receiving $75 and $30 monthly, or $975 and $370 yearly allotments.

These allotments are made on a monthly basis, over an eight or nine month period. Colleges and universities are assigned quotas of students on the basis of 9.3 percent of the total number of resident undergraduate and graduate students, 16 to 24 years of age inclusive, enrolled as of October 1, 1938, the report explains.

College students may not receive more than an average of $15 per month, and graduate students not more than $30, but because of the long waiting list of applicants the payments have been reduced to an average for all students of $12.11. The average for undergraduates is $11.94 and for graduates $17.98, as of last November.

Campaign Against Gambling, Vice Is Planned in Valley

Aid of Appleton Clergymen Not Yet Enlisted in Campaign

While a campaign against gambling and other forms of vice in the Fox river valley was announced at Fond du Lac yesterday, Appleton clergymen have not yet been informed of the plan.

The Rev. Harry S. Wise, a Fond du Lac Methodist minister who is retiring as vice president of the Fond du Lac County Citizens League, announced the campaign planned by the newly created Wisconsin Association of Civic Leagues, Inc. Leaders of the league, he said, will be drawn from Appleton, Green Bay, Sheboygan, Ripon, Fond du Lac and other Fox river valley cities.

Officers of the Appleton Ministerial association, however, said they know nothing of the intended campaign.

Layman in Charge

The civic league is an outgrowth of a recent meeting in Milwaukee of Fox river valley laymen and clergymen, the Rev. Mr. Wise said. Control of the organization, he said, would be vested in laymen because "preachers have been accused, perhaps unjustly, of 'killing' the anti-vice and gambling movement by their enthusiasm."

When final arrangements are completed, the league will begin work on a long range program, the Methodist minister stated.

A state police system will be advocated in the program, it was reported. Another phase of the program will be to eliminate "politics" through civil service.

The Fond du Lac County Citizens committee already has affiliated with the league, the Rev. Mr. Wise said, adding that raising of funds for work of the Wisconsin Association of Civic Leagues may be carried out in the future by a paid field man.

House Committee Ponders Basin in Green Bay Harbor

Testimony Reveals Improvement Would Benefit Northern Wisconsin

Washington—(AP)—The house rivers and harbors committee took under consideration today a proposal for the construction of a turning basin in the harbor at Green Bay.

The committee heard testimony late yesterday that the improvement would be of great economic benefit to industries in northern Wisconsin, and would constitute an important national defense link.

W. F. Kern, secretary of the Green Bay Harbor commission, told the committee the improvement was just as essential to northern Wisconsin as to Green Bay, because "80 per cent of the commerce at Green Bay is trans-shipped to the interior."

Mills and factories in the northern interior of the state, Kern said, depend on coal, sulphur, pulpwood and other products brought by rail and water to Green Bay.

Army engineers recommended construction of the turning basin at an estimated cost of $86,000 to facilitate the movement of land and water traffic at Green Bay.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. A. Wheeler of the army engineers said large lake vessels must now go up the east river through three drawbridges to turn. Construction of the basin, he said, would eliminate this, permitting freer movement of land traffic across the bridges and facilitating movement of marine traffic.

Wheeler said it would be valuable in connection with national defense. He said army engineers recommended the project provided local interests contributed $30,000 toward the cost of improvement and lands, easements and rights of way.

Congressman Johns (R-Wis.) presented figures to show an increase in commerce at Green Bay during the past few years. Kerwin said waterborne commerce at Green Bay had grown faster during the past 20 years than at any other lake port.

Municipal Court Jury Finds Motorist Negligent in Crash

Damages of $1,111.92 were allowed Theodore Van Lankvelt, Little Chute, as father and guardian of Harvey Van Lankvelt, 16, in his $2,500 damage suit against Robert Schmidt, Kaukauna, by a municipal court jury yesterday.

Van Lankvelt asked damages for injuries suffered by his son in an accident involving a car driven by Schmidt on old Highway 41 near Kimberly last May. The Van Lankvelt youth was riding a bicycle at the time.

The jury took the case at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and returned its verdict at 9 o'clock last night. It set damages at $1,389.90 and found Schmidt 80 per cent negligent. Schmidt was found to be negligent in regards to speed, lookout, failure to give audible signal and failing to pass a safe distance to the left of the bicyclist.

The cyclist was found to be negligent in failing to have a proper reflector on his machine.

The suit opened Monday before Judge Thomas H. Ryan.

Designers Have Houses on Wheels That Cost Only $300

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
New Haven, Conn.—(AP)—Land yachts, house on wheels, to cost as low as $300, were proposed to the Yale-life conference on house building techniques today.

They would be healthier and more convenient than great-grandfather's log cabin, said Corwin Willson, Flint, Mich., engineer and designer. He added that they would fit also the restlessness of a civilization that has learned to like to keep moving.

Then, just to show that the idea is far from extravagant, William B. Sout, another of the 300 designers and scientists attending the conference, told of some new "suitcase" houses already built in his engineering laboratory at Dearborn, Mich.

One of these houses, he said, is small enough to pack and tow with the family auto. In one hour it can be unpacked and set up ready for housekeeping. The first of this type already has been delivered to Catalina Island, for tourists.

This house has one room, bath, kitchenette and a closet. Its size is 12 by 15 feet, insulated against weather, and carrying its own oil heating system.

It is made of panels five feet by seven. The same panel, Stout said, can be fitted to form 32 different styles of house.

City Council to Weigh Problem of Salary Reduction

1939 Wage Ordinance Will be Submitted for Consideration Tonight

Tonight aldermen again will face the problem of whether to reduce their own salaries to conform with the amount of work they will have to do under the new 18-ward plan.

The council met last week to discuss the situation but adjourned after 15 minutes of routine business without discussing the salary ordinance, for which, it was understood, the meeting was called.

Last Chance

Tonight is the last chance aldermen will have to consider a 1939 salary ordinance for according to the state laws governing cities. The ordinance must be adopted at the first meeting in February. However, the council could adjourn to another date, not later than the next regular session, to consider the problem.

Presently aldermen are receiving $500 per year plus compensation for board of review work.

The city now pays $6,000 per year for 12 aldermen and that figure would be hiked to $9,000 per year if 18 aldermen were to be paid $500 per year. At $300 per year for each alderman, the total cost would be $5,400, or $600 less than the city now is paying.

Committee Votes to Place 3 Zone Signs

The city council traffic committee this morning voted to place three school zone signs on Badger avenue at Wilson Junior and Appleton Senior High schools. The recommendation will be submitted to the city council tonight.

Want Homesteads Of Age Pensioners Free From Claims

Assembly Committee Is Urged to Report Bill Favorably

Madison—(AP)—A capacity audience yesterday urged the assembly judiciary committee to report favorably on a bill exempting homesteads of old-age beneficiaries from liens or claims for aid received.

The bill was given a hearing along with two other bills, one calling for the abolition of the department of commerce, and the other limiting the pardon powers of the governor when he fails of reelection.

Although the homestead bill, introduced by Assemblyman Leo T. Niemuth, (R), Oshkosh, would exempt homesteads valued at $5,000 or less, proponents of the bill suggested the exemption extend to homesteads of any value if the owners were old age assistance recipients.

In favor of the bill were Niemuth, Glenn Turner, Madison, unsuccessful candidate for governor last autumn, and E. J. Zisch, of Milwaukee, head of the citizens recovery and pension plan. No one appeared against it.

Platforms Cited

Pointing out that the state platforms of the Republican, Democratic and Progressive parties favored liberalization of aid to the aged, Niemuth said his bill was in line with the aims of all three parties, and that the liens on homesteads were "penalties on the thrift" of those who saved and bought their own homes.

Turner and Zisch suggested the liens be removed from homesteads of any value, adding that the homesteads should go to the recipients' children or grandchildren since in many cases the children had helped buy the home and support their parents. After the hearings some 40 to 50 elderly folks registered in favor of the bill, which Niemuth said might be amended to include some of the suggestions.

Mark S. Catlin, Jr., (R), Appleton, who introduced the commerce department measure, attacked the new division, saying it was "unnecessary and unwarranted."

Ashe Defends Division

Thomas F. Ashe, director of the department, defended it saying it gave industry a voice in government and aimed to promote prosperity.

"Business and industry, the enterprise system, the men who create employment and pay rolls, have had only regulation. Regulation of hours, wages, relations with employees, and inspection of buildings, safety, sewage, books and payroll taxes—things too numerous to mention, but never until the department of commerce was formed did it have an avenue to get its views to government," Ashe said.

Dr. C. E. Albright, Milwaukee, chairman of the department's advisory council, Carl Reynolds, of the Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, suggested that the department be allowed to operate a while longer, saying that they were interested in learning the results of a comparative tax survey now being conducted by the department.

Elmer L. Genzmer (D), Mayville, who submitted the bill limiting the pardon powers of the governor said the power to grant reprieves, commutations, and pardons should be vested with the chief justice of the state supreme court after an incumbent governor is defeated in the November elections.

Referring to the pardon former Governor LaFollette granted his secretary, Thomas M. Duncan last Christmas eve, Genzmer said: "Philip (LaFollette) did not have any more right to grant that pardon, than you or I did to say the bars of the cell Duncan was in."

Britain Wants to Know Why Japanese Seized Freighters

Shanghai—(AP)—British naval authorities today asked the Japanese for an immediate explanation of the seizure of the British freighter Saint Vincent de Paul Monday.

The master of the British vessel, upon his arrival here today, reported two Japanese destroyers escorted the Saint Vincent de Paul to Tsingtao after she had been seized by a customs vessel.

At Tsingtao, despite British representations, the Japanese refused to permit the Saint Vincent de Paul to leave until the British cruiser Birmingham was ordered to the scene from Weihaiwei. The Birmingham escorted the freighter most of the way to Shanghai.

A Japanese navy spokesman said Japanese naval authorities played no direct part in the seizure and detention of the Saint Vincent de Paul, asserting it "just happened that Japanese destroyers were patrolling the vicinity and proceeded to Tsingtao at the same time."

Representative Woodrum (D-Va.) told the house that a conference report, comprising senate-house differences on the $725,000,000 relief bill, would be brought up "the first thing tomorrow."

Problem Not Solved

Secretary Wallace reported that a two-hour conference with senators and representatives from southern states had failed to produce a definite solution for the huge cotton surplus problem.

Carl Gray, vice chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railway, testifying before the house interstate commerce committee considering transportation legislation, took sharp issue with a statement of an interstate commerce commissioner that the government should force consolidation of some railroads. The assertion was made by Commissioner Joseph Eastman in a speech at Rochester, N. Y., Saturday.

Representative Hope (R-Kans.) introduced a processing tax bill, estimated it would yield $202,000,000 a year, and provided courts would find it constitutional. Hope proposed to impose the tax on products manufactured from wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco. The supreme court killed an earlier processing tax in 1936, but the Kansan said his differed in several ways.

London—(AP)—The house of commons was informed today that Imperial Airways hopes to be able to start "a scheduled seasonal service of an experimental character to the United States" June 1.

Captain H. H. Balfour, undersecretary for air, made the announcement.

Balfour said the government knew of reports that "an American air line" was ready to start transatlantic service immediately "but we hope for a simultaneous start."

(Arrangements have been made by the United States state department with France, Britain, Canada and Ireland for commercial transatlantic operations to be authorized by the civil aeronautics authority.)

Unofficial information at the state department has been that several companies were planning to start service to France in the spring. Prominently mentioned were Pan American Airways and American Export Airlines, Inc.)

Boyer Will Not Be Candidate for Education Board

Pressure of Private Interests Given as Reason For Retiring

C. K. Boyer, whose term as a member of the board of education expires this year, will not be a candidate for reelection, he announced this morning. Pressure of private interests was given as the reason for retiring.

"Several citizens of Appleton have asked me about my intentions of becoming a candidate for reelection to the school board," Mr. Boyer said in a formal statement this morning. "Due to pressure of business the reply has been 'no.' Hence I am taking this opportunity to state in a more formal way that I very definitely will not be a candidate for any public office."

"I have appreciated the past cooperation of the present members of the board of education and its staff and the support given us by the mayor and common council. What has been accomplished has been possible only through this cooperation," he said.

Pitt to Abide by Rules of Big 10

Rumor Panthers Would Join Loop if Chicago Withdrew

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The University of Pittsburgh, expressing "determination to maintain its athletics on an amateur basis," today voluntarily placed itself under Big Ten regulations.

Full-time coaches and the university's faculty committee on athletics ratified a cooperative agreement under which Major John L. Griffith, veteran commissioner of the Western conference, will supervise Pitt's athletics in accordance with Big Ten rules.

"The plan simply is one of mutual cooperation," Griffith said in Chicago. "There is no movement underway that I know of to enlarge the membership of the conference."

The agreement is the first made by the Big Ten with any school outside the conference.

Proposed by Pitt James Hagan, Pitt athletic director, said the plan was first submitted by Pitt and approved by the conference, to assist the university in guarding against violations of eligibility, subsidization and proselytizing.

The athletic situation at Pitt has been hotly debated since the announcement more than a year ago by Chancellor John G. Bowman of the "Bowman code," a policy that placed the university's athletics on a "strictly amateur" basis.

The discussion reached a peak several months ago when 33 freshmen members of the 1938 football squad protested they were being "dunned" for tuition fees. The first year players admitted they had signed notes for tuition but asserted they were under the impression this was only "formality."

Termed the best freshman team in recent years at Pitt the players talked of leaving school unless an adjustment was made. The university then waived the tuition fees for one year only.

To Make Survey Referring to the Big Ten agreement, Hagan said:

"The plan is that the cooperative institutions file all information coming to their attention in the office of the commissioner who proceeds in confidential manner to investigate the validity of any charges."

Griffith will come here to survey Pitt's athletic setup and is to receive "full information respecting the present status of athletics at the university," Hagan said.

The agreement apparently ends Pitt's post-season games since Big Ten rules ban such contests.

Although there were unconfirmed reports heard here that Chicago may withdraw from the Big Ten, Pitt officials refused to comment on possibilities of joining the conference.

Blue Streaks to Meet Marshfield

Hockey Battle Will be Staged Tonight if Weather Permits

Weather permitting, Appleton Blue Streaks will tangle with the Marshfield hockey team at Jones park rink tonight. The Appleton quint lost by a 1 to 0 margin at Marshfield in a previous game and seek to avenge the defeat. John Babino broke his shoulder in the tilt at Marshfield and tonight's game will be in the form of a benefit for him. Additional proceeds will be used to defray expenses to the state tourney at Wausau.

Appleton suffered a 7 to 1 defeat at Green Bay last night. The squad previously defeated Green Bay by a 5 to 4 count but played without the services of Carleton Tracy, veteran goalie who is out with two smashed fingers.

Marshfield boasts one of the greatest pair of defense men in the state while Appleton will be bolstered with Clark Klinger, former Blue Streak goalie now with Oshkosh, in the game tonight.

Mail Notices on Acre Allotments

Data on Soil Conservation Program Sent to All Waupaca Farmers

Waupaca—Acreage allotment notices for the 1939 agricultural conservation program have been mailed to all persons who own or operate farms in Waupaca county.

Total soil-depleting allotments for individual farms have been set on the basis of the 1936-37 adjustment soil-depleting acreage and the soil management rating for the farm, which was scaled down to meet the county limit of total soil-depleting acres.

Special allotments for wheat and potatoes were based on the usual acreage planted during a three-year period which also had to be brought down within the county limits for such crops.

The allotments have been sent out much earlier than in previous years in order that farmers may plan their farming operations well in advance of planting time this spring.

Waupaca county's acreage allotment of soil-depleting crops has been set at 113,943 acres, under the 1939 agricultural conservation program.

The county has been designated as a commercial potato growing county and as such will participate in the potato program of the state. Out of the county's soil depleting acreage assignment, 11,266 acres have been set aside as a potato acreage allotment. Payment rates will be based upon the normal yield of each farm and will be made at the rate of 3 cents for each bushel of potatoes in the normal yield.

Issue Order Regarding Labeling Legume Seeds

When Wisconsin farmers buy their legume seeds this year the label will tell them a more complete story than heretofore, it is disclosed in a new order issued by the state department of agriculture and markets.

White sweet clover seed containing 2 to 5 per cent mottled seed shall be labeled to show the per cent of purity and the per cent of mottled seeds, according to the order.

Seed containing more than 5 per cent of mottled seed shall not be labeled white sweet clover, but must be labeled sweet clover.

With respect to presence of "hard" seeds in legume seeds the department order declares that the label must report actual germination, the percentage of "hard" seeds, and the date of the test which must have been completed within five months of time of sale in Wisconsin.

At the public hearing of seeds men held before issuing the order it was brought out that "hard" seeds are not necessarily dead seeds. The statement on the label takes this into consideration and figures the percentage of live seeds to be the total of the germination percentage and the hard seeds percentage.

HONORED FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE TO AGRICULTURE

5 Added to Farm, Home Honor Roll

Four Men, Women Recognized for Service to Agriculture

Madison—Four men and one woman were added last night to the University of Wisconsin Farm and Home honor roll for outstanding service to agriculture.

The five leaders in farming and homemaking were: Matt Domaszek, of Amherst Junction; William Hennlich, of Dorchester; August John Piper, of Racine; Dr. Bertha E. Reynolds, of Lone Rock; and John Brandt, of Litchfield, Minn., executive of the Land O' Lakes Co-operative.

Each received an engraved testimonial signed by Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin; Harold Wilkie, president of the board of regents and Chris L. Christensen, dean of the college of agriculture.

The University since 1909 has made these annual awards for native intelligence, perseverance, and superior qualities in farm leadership. Academic training plays no part in the selection.

The first three men to be named were Henry Wallace, of Des Moines, Iowa, grandfather of the present secretary of the United States department of agriculture; C. P. Goodrich, of Fort Atkinson, and A. L. Hatch, of Sturgeon Bay. A total of 130 persons have been honored in 31 years.

Dr. Reynolds was recognized for her service to the "community as a worker for social betterment, as a friendly counselor, as a leader in community enterprises and as a stimulus to rural improvement."

Hennlich was credited with untiring work in developing a productive farm and farm home and was recognized for his support of education as a means of improving rural conditions.

Domaszek was termed as a pioneer in the development of a farm and herd regarded as one of the best in the state.

Piper's recognition recalled that he was one of the early leaders on the subject of production and marketing methods and that he was among the first to call attention to the importance of quality in truck crops.

Brandt, the only out-of-state farmer to be given an award, was listed as one who had applied business judgment and business principles to the production and marketing of dairy products.

Small Farms Given Special Option on 1939 AAA Program

The 1939 AAA farm program offers a special option to the farmer whose total soil-depleting allotment is less than 20 acres.

Wisconsin Crops Last Year Worth 154 Million Dollars

The value of the 40 leading crops raised on Wisconsin farms last year is estimated at nearly 154 million dollars, according to the crop reporting service in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

With the exceptionally large production of many crops, and reduced business activity, farm prices declined in 1938, and the value of the crops raised in the state last year is estimated to be about 11 million dollars less than the value of the crops harvested in 1937.

Of the crops included in the estimate, corn and tame hay were valued at nearly 92 million dollars, which is about 60 per cent of the total value of all crops in the state. Estimates of the crop reporting service show that the 1938 corn crop which was the largest in the history of the state had a farm value of over 47 million dollars, and the tame hay crop was valued at nearly 45 million dollars. Three cash crops important to many Wisconsin farmers alone had a farm value of over 17 million dollars. The potato crop harvested in the state last year is valued at $8,586,000. The farm value of the state's crop of peas for canning is estimated at $5,157,000, and the tobacco crop is valued at $3,706,000.

Use Nurse Crop For Hay, Pasture Under Farm Act

Garvey, County Chairman, Explains Change In 1939 Program

Outagamie county agricultural officials have been notified that, under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation program, acreages planted to oats, barley or rye are not to be classified as soil-depleting if these crops are used for a nurse crop for legumes or perennial grass and the crop is cut green for hay and a good stand of grasses is established this year.

This is one of the new provisions of this year's farm program, according to Joseph E. Garvey, chairman of the Outagamie County Agricultural Conservation committee.

He has been advised that on any wheat allotment farm, any acreage of wheat regardless of its use, will be charged against the wheat allotment and will be classified as soil-depleting. On non-wheat allotment farms, it was said, wheat used as a nurse crop and cut green for hay, if a good stand of legumes or grasses is obtained, would be classified as a non-soil depleting crop.

Any farm having a wheat allotment of less than eight acres may become a non-wheat allotment farm if the operator so chooses. It was explained, a farm for which no wheat allotment was established is a non-wheat allotment farm.

Mr. Garvey has also been notified that flax for grain will not be classified as soil-depleting if it is used as a nurse crop, providing a good stand of a conserving crop is established.
